Whispers 1968

Dedication

We, the editors, with deep appreciation of his continuing contributions to the school for many years, dedicate the 1968 WHISPERS

to

David Stewart Walker, Jr.

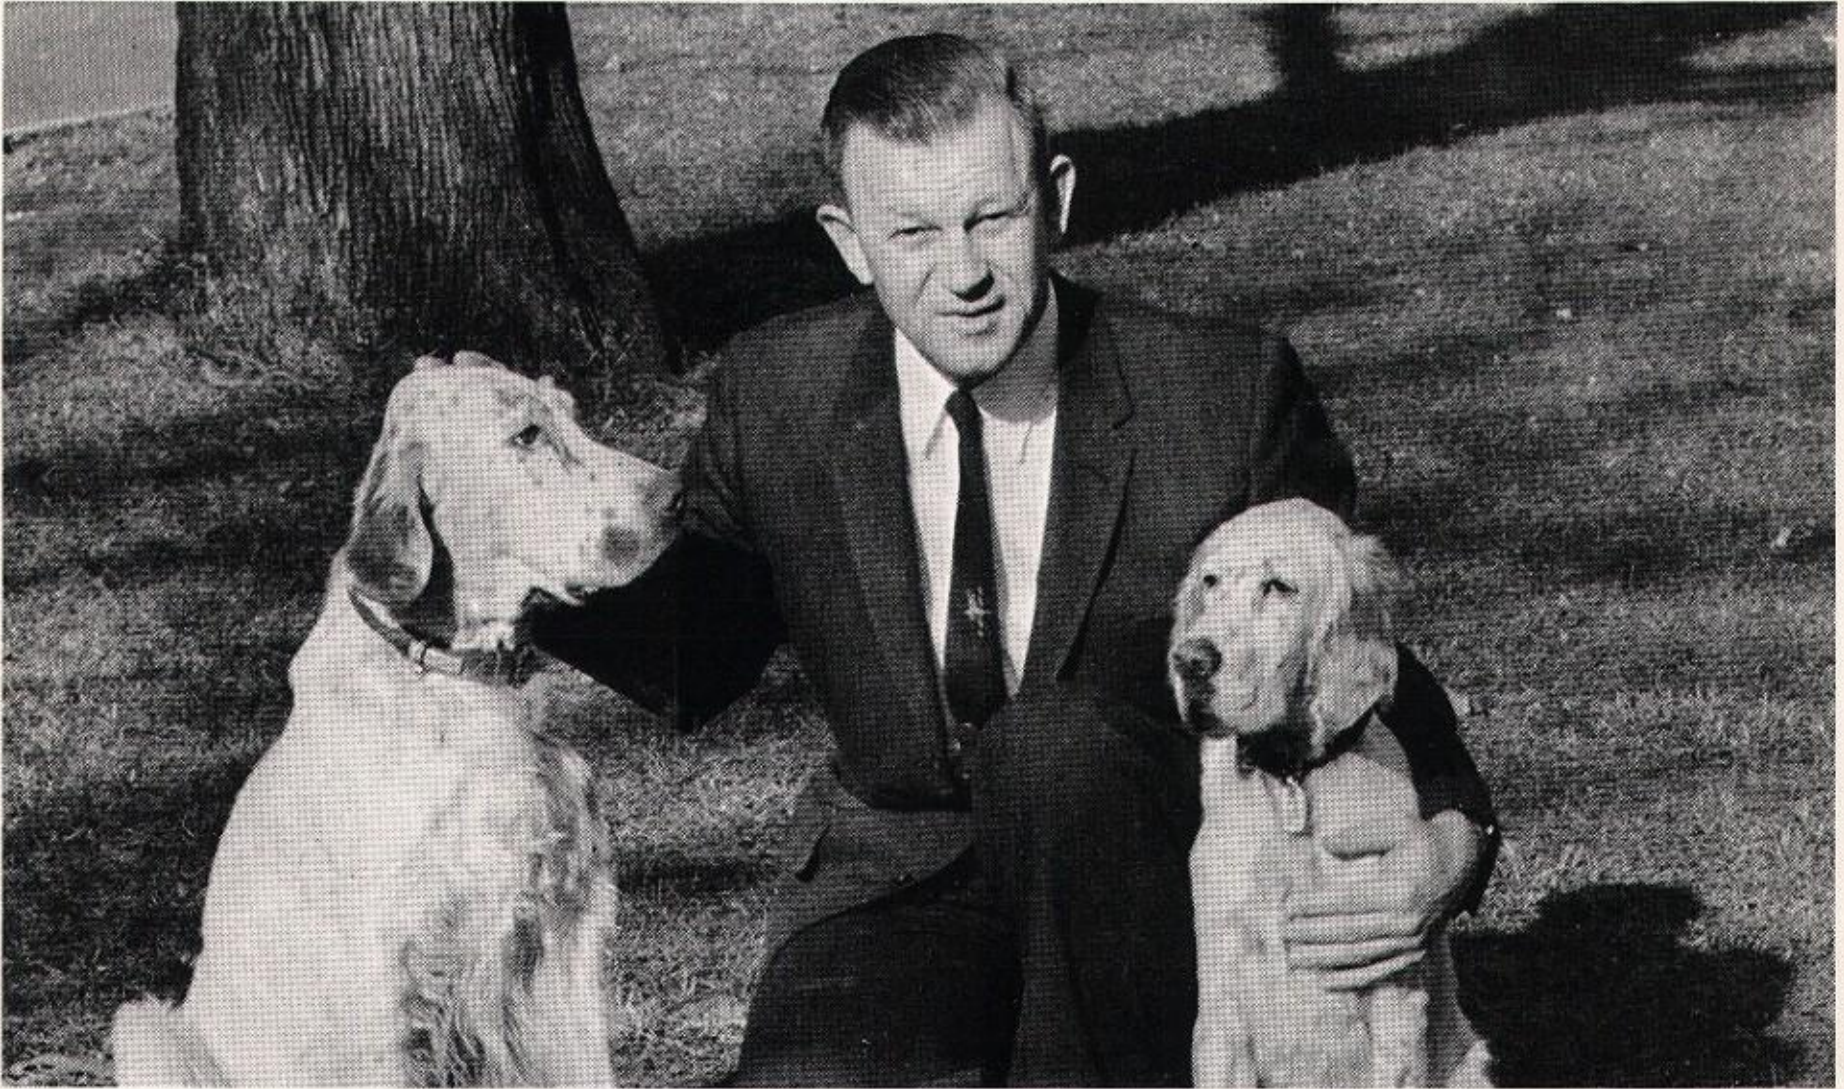

A teacher of penetrating and forceful elucidation, and an administrator and statistician of legendary efficiency, he still retains the keen interest in sports of a student. For a better understanding of cosines, for schedules that work, and for free rides to innumerable sports events, we are grateful to the only man we know who could replace a computer.

Faculty

In Tribute

William Bee Ravenel, III

When a man of so much energy and activity is taken so suddenly from our midst, the measure of our loss is difficult to comprehend. Only after months or years will we really come to understand all he has meant to us and to the school. Interrupted in mid-career, he was far from attaining his goals, but the structure of his achievements here—incomplete as he himself might judge it—is a monument beyond the powers of most men to accomplish in several lifetimes. We will remember him for the enthusiasm with which he taught and coached us, and for his insistence on the highest standards of honor, discipline, and dedication to purpose; yet more will we remember the magnificent patience with which he bore our shortcomings, the delighted humor with which he shared our departures from the serious, and the unswerving devotion to our interests that governed his every thought and act.

“He was a man; take him for all and all,
We shall not look upon his like again.”

JON BARRETT

This wide eyed and gentle-looking waif has a deceptive frailty of appearance that appeals to many girls' maternal instincts and has even caused opposing tackles to ease up for fear of breaking him in two. By the time they discover his true mettle, it is frequently too late, because J.B. knows what he is doing, and is hard to stop. To chronicle his literary, athletic, and social successes one needs more inspiration than the whispers of some daemon, but his friends will remember him better for his inherent geniality, his wit that can be barbed or gentle to suit the occasion, and his red-and-black wool shirt.

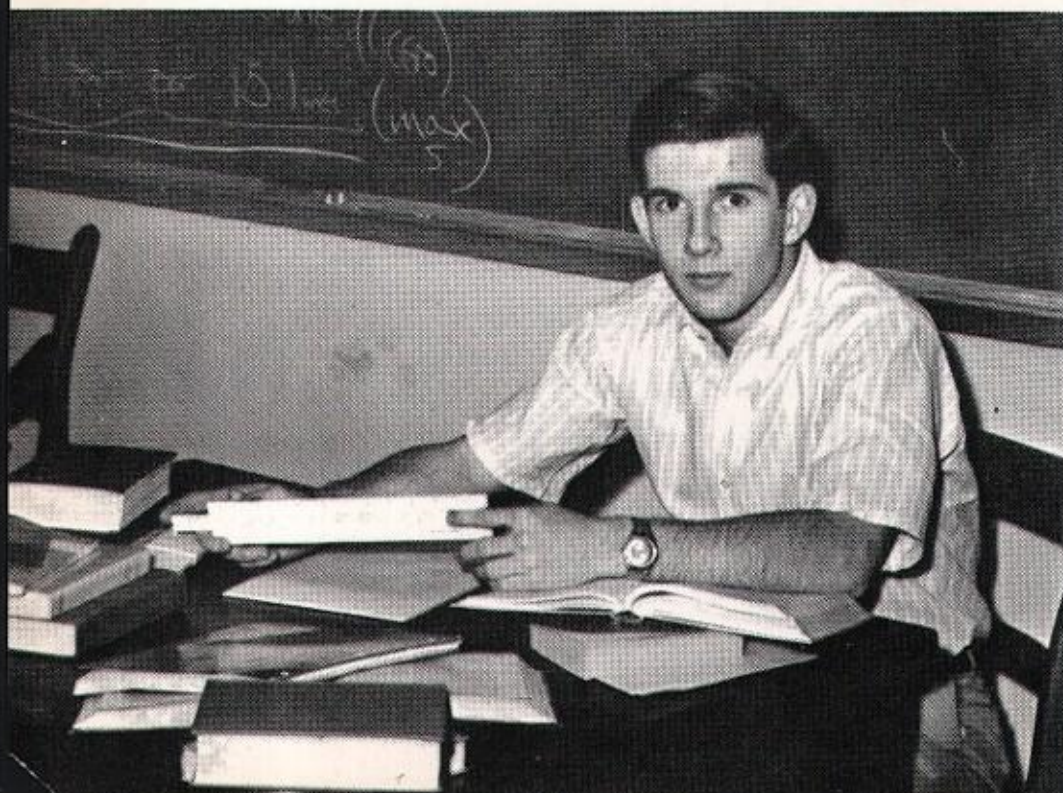

TAYLOR BURKE

Appearances do deceive. Taylor not only isn't dead, he flourishes as the friendly undertaker of Weird Village. He sepulchral exterior ill conceals a lively wit that delights in verbal battle, a powerful intellect that makes confetti of College Boards, and a generous spirit that will go to any lengths to help a friend or sustain a righteous cause. Whether it is attacking or assisting, Taylor is better fitted to be the giver than the receiver of the action.

GEORGE BUTLER

Knowledge is the keynote of George's life; he craves it, seeks it, and finds it. Never indulging in frivolities or time-wasting, George has an unquenchable desire to improve himself. Through his serious and conscientious hard work, employing fully a keen analytical mind, he has managed to accomplish every self-set goal, such as having the largest vocabulary in school. Earnest and mature, cheerful and gregarious, George manages to be moral without being stuffy, and is liked for his humor as well as respected for his strength of purpose.

ARMFIELD CANNON

Quietly hiding plans for a new adventure, a new joke, or even a new girl friend, "Pit" has been known to endure for as long as one hour before letting loose with his high, cackling laugh. Respected by all who know him, Armfield sometimes contrasts his humor with devout seriousness; but to hush his unpredictable whims would be to discontinue the "Great Shake" song, to throw no more rocks at St. Agnes' chaste windows, and never again to slip through a dark alley near High's. In conjunction with his quiet, spirited manner, Armfield's potential parallels a loaded . . . well, that's his name, isn't it?

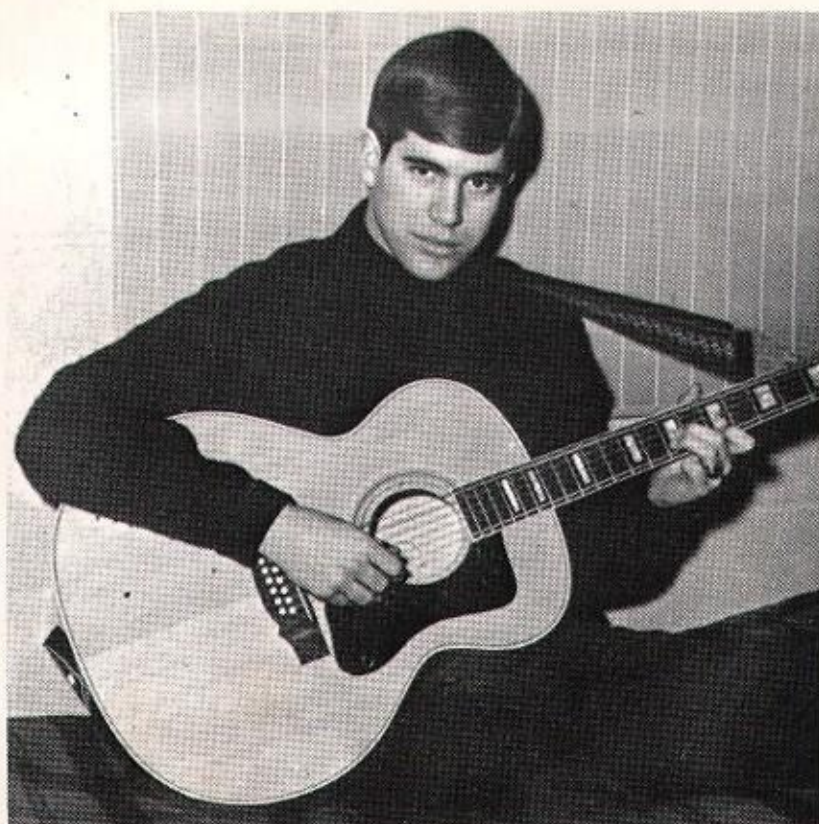

DABNEY CARR

"Ole Dabney" can best be explained as a potpourri of several different tastes and styles. A lighthearted intellectual and psychedelic soul-man, Dabney worries only about such matters as the condition of his dinner jacket. Sporting a wild sense of humor, he can hold others enthralled with his exciting and somewhat ridiculous jokes and stories. Behind his comic facade, however, lies a knowledgeable patron of the arts and high society, and a real Cavalier in the old tradition.

LYLES CARR

Lyles is a hyperthyroid hypochondriac, an irrepressible bundle of nervous energy who has made the common plea, "But, sir!" into a notorious trademark. Either on top of the world, or sure that it is coming to a horrible end, he is predictable only not to be dull. Whether crowing from a High List perch, or taking refuge from a pop quiz in the Infirmary, whipping a State champion or getting beat up by a rat sparring partner, sticking or getting stuck, he will do things in his own way, leading his fascinated audience to shout in admiration or derision—but mostly in amazement—"Oh. Lyles!"

JIM CHICKERING

"Speak softly, and carry a big Nick," will serve as the motto of our tall, dark champion perfumed-letter collector. Dedicated to serious guitar-playing, fast running, and a full social life — not necessarily in that order — Jim has worked hard to produce the appearance of effortless success. Despite his quiet reserve, the smooth style of his performances has won him considerable attention, and his cheerful, easy-going disposition has served to make friends of his admirers.

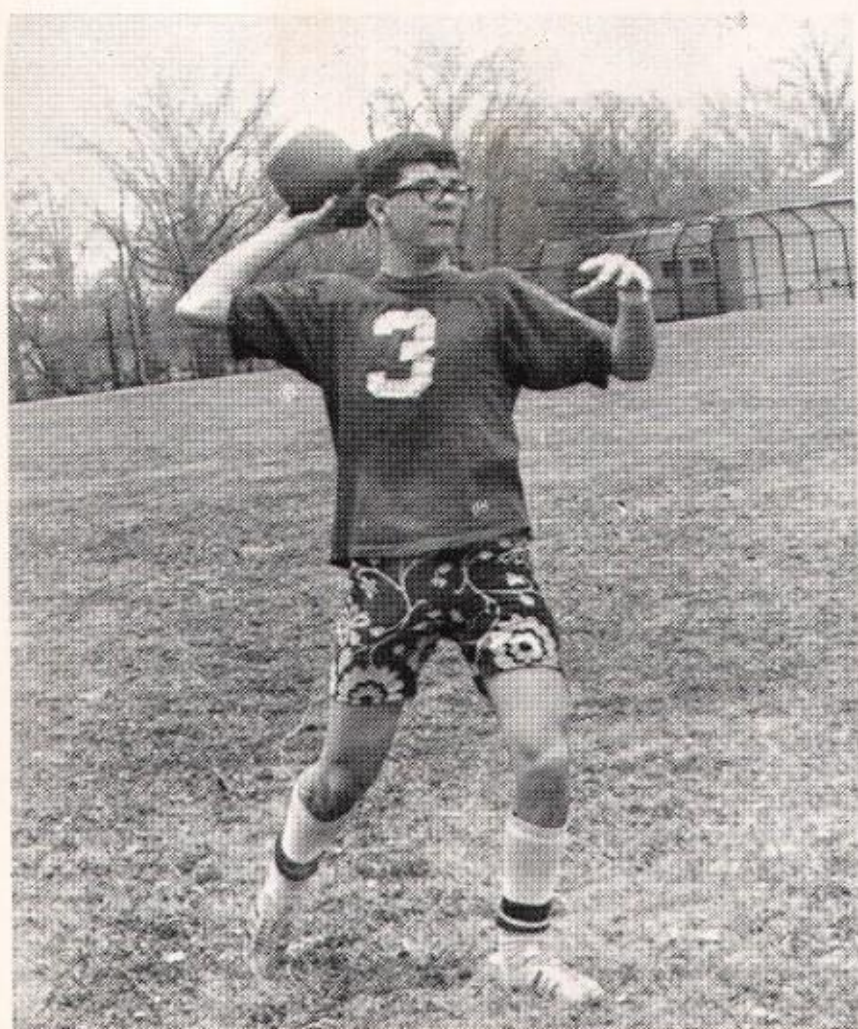

CHIP CHILDS

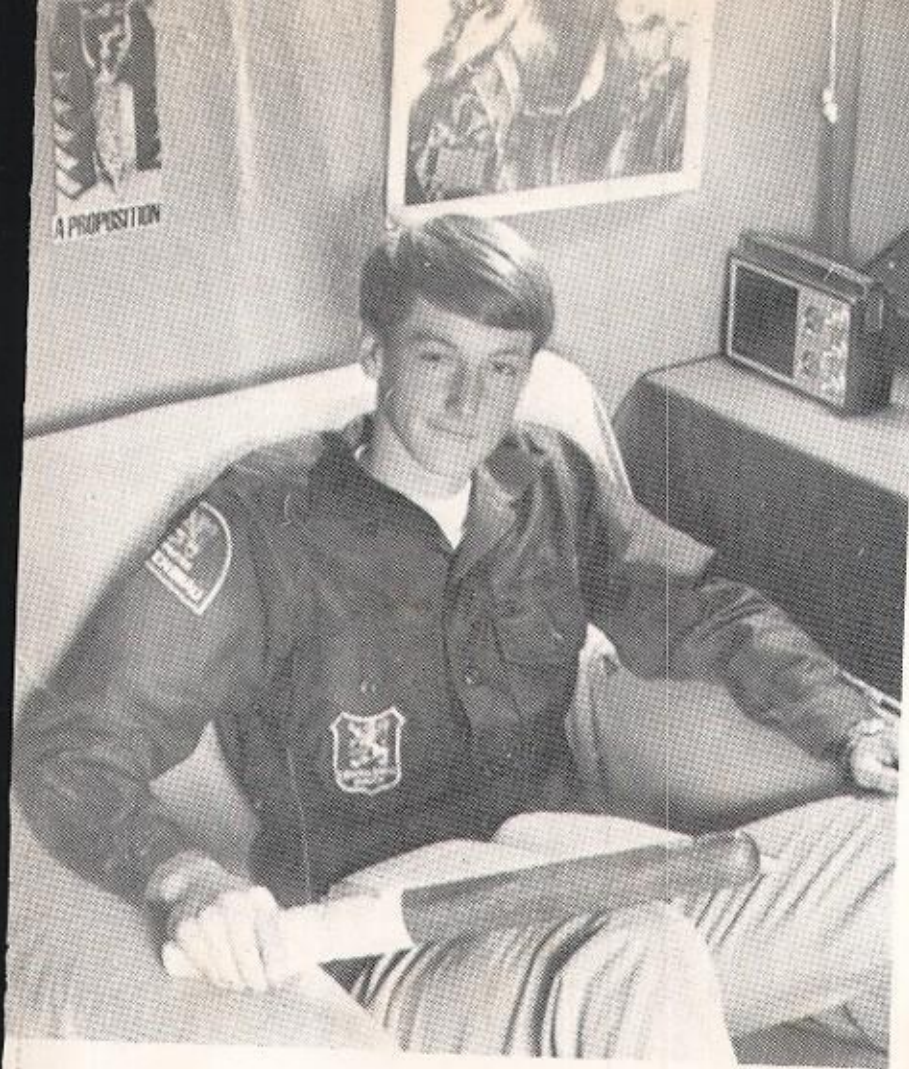

Tripping around campus in his Ben Hogan cap and Black Baltimore sneakers, "Chirpy Children" is the epitome of the self-assured and cheerful optimist. Chip is remarkably able to combine this sunny disposition with the underlying substance of a dedicated athlete and a conscientious scholar. Possessed of an able mind in an agile body, "Brute" excels in all he attempts, and he attempts much. He will surely be able to grapple with the rigors of life.

CHRIS CLORE

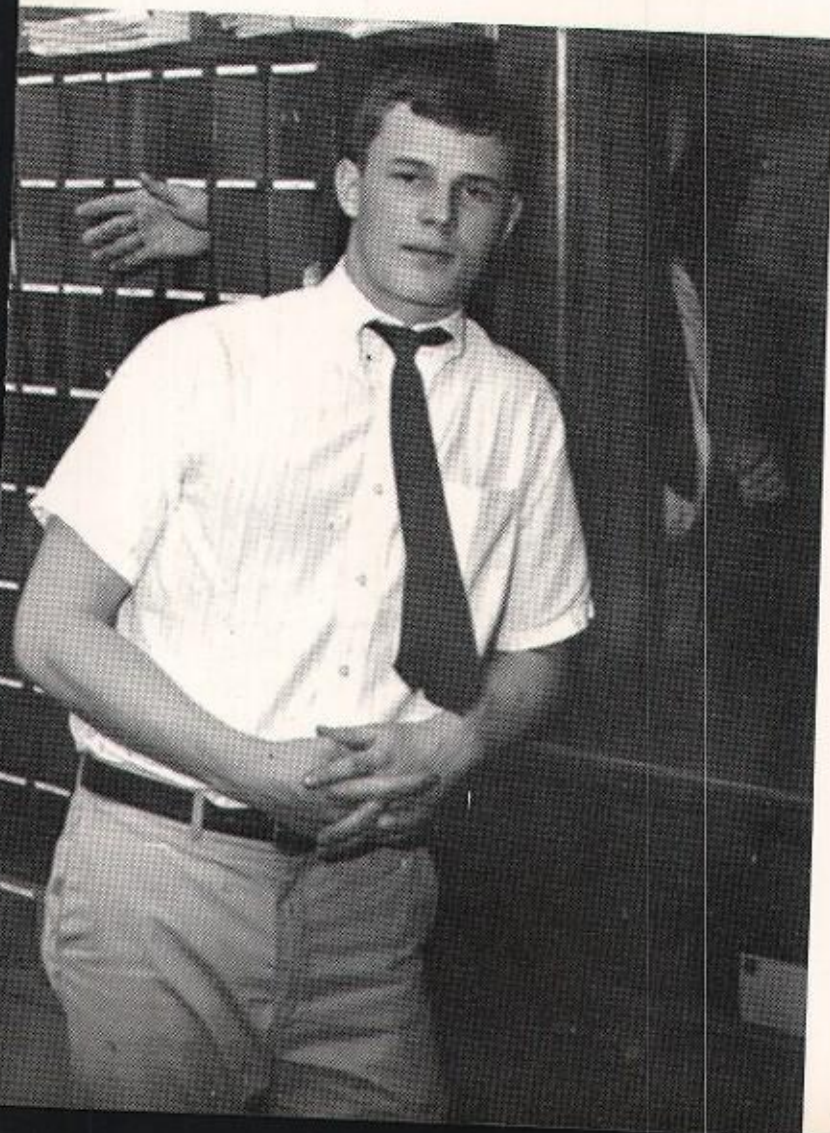

Dalrymple's fearless flack has displayed his irrepressible spirit in many legitimate — and some otherwise — endeavors, from limericks to touch football. "Cruncher" shows an exterior of animal energy, but inside his curly head lies a fresh creative wit that makes even his bitter moments humorous. His creativity finds more concrete expression in painting and woodcuts. The medium may be uncertain, but Cris will have a message or a massage for the world.

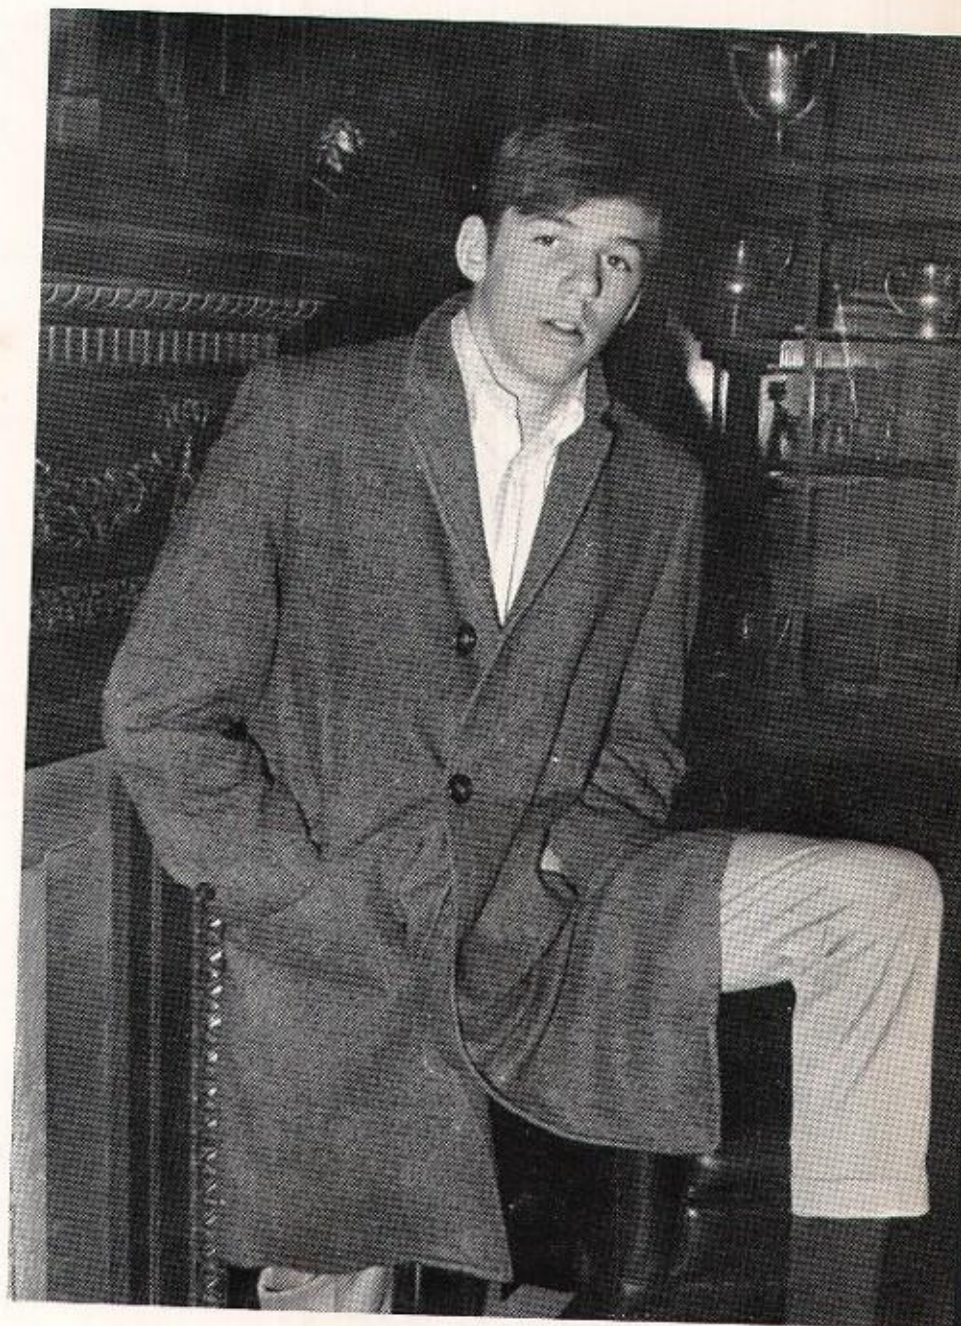

PETE DANDRIDGE

"Petey" is decidedly the Renaissance Man. A talented character in several fields, he has used his extended tenure to revitalize his outlook on life in general, and Chemistry in particular. A coach as well as a player, and a thinker as well as a doer, Pete has grown as much in character as he has in size. Once a quiet boy concerned with himself, he has evolved into a witty student leader, dedicated to the role of keeping his wild companions out of as much trouble as possible. He is as congenial as he is versatile.

JIM CROWELL

Possessing a sneer without peer, on a campus where sneering is something of a fine art, J.C., no matter how he tries to be bitter, cannot help dropping a smile every thirty seconds—possibly because his is an essentially friendly and tolerant nature. He has a brilliant mind and an equally brilliant wardrobe, and manages to keep up his marks and his socks with little effort and no garters. From mildly sardonic to jovially piquant, Jim is always in style.

JESSE DAVIDSON

"There was once this guy who wanted to make a good impression, you see . . .". Thus, Jesse relates his immortal joke, a joke which he tells almost twice a day. Actually, it is Jesse, with his customarily hoarse voice, who has made the good impression on nearly everyone here. A capable performer in all fields, "Trusty" (almost) has earned the respect of those who are still laughing at his off-beat humor. The Postmaster-General, Jesse rules his office as a branch of the Federal Government, and not a lounge. With such a combination of humor, authority, and respect as he has displayed, Jesse is destined to put Bedford on the map.

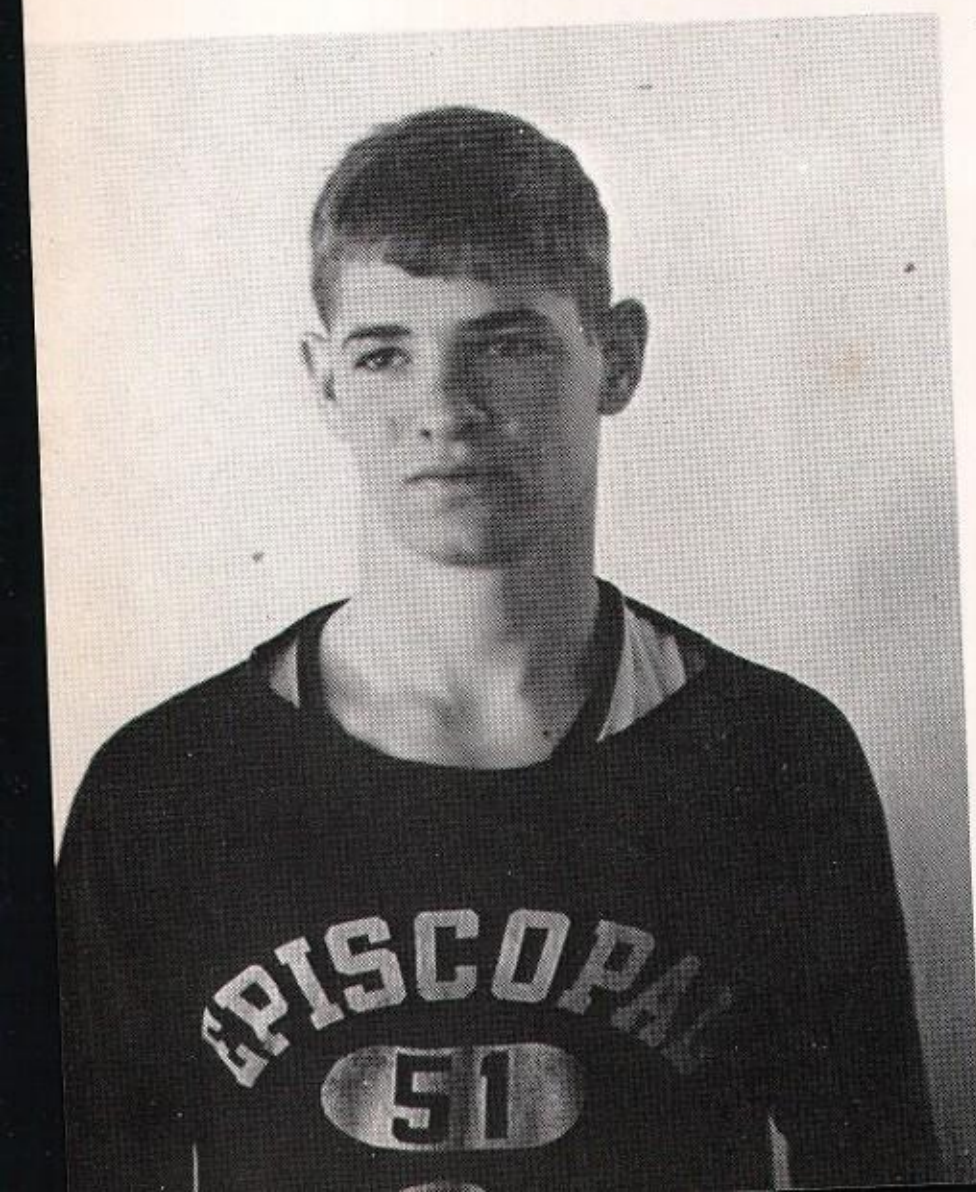

GRIF DODSON

Peering quizzically from under his seldom-cut, straw-colored forelock, Grif has the expression of a friendly chipmunk—alert, inquisitive, and very much interested in any activity that is going on. Never one to put himself forward, and capable of long silences, he has nevertheless made himself respected for his ability to work hard and efficiently at everything—except studies—and well liked for his cheerful disposition and willingness to be helpful. Whatever the project, “the Gripper” is always ready to bear a hand.

GEDDES DOWLING

When “Prince Albert”, mahatma of the squatty body gang, rounds the corner, trilling his usual affectionate “You second-hand fathead,” or the more penetrating “C’mon, you guys,” he is probably on a mission involving his latest money-making scheme. Geddes has preserved a refreshingly illogical outlook on the world which makes association with “Big” a truly confusing experience. Geddes’s diligent, level-headed approach to his responsibilities makes him a valuable addition to any society.

STEVE FITTS

As a freshman “Elijah,” the bow-legged Alabaman, seemed hardly the material for a respected and popular school leader. But, despite his reserved and quiet air, Steve has endeared himself to his schoolmates through his unselfishness, warm congeniality, and unexpected flashes of wit. By dint of hard work and dedication, this deceptively unspectacular farm boy has developed his hidden leadership qualities, athletic prowess, and scholastic ability to become a well rounded leader; but to his closest friends he will always be “Skillet.”

JIM FITZHUGH

As the only student to live legally in two rooms at the same time, and as the campus's only reptile representative, Jim is unique in other areas as well. Close examination of the animated pool cue with the Arkansas drawl will reveal an accomplished pianist who, as a "mighty python," has lived up to his nickname. Quiet and conservative, Jim has persevered through the tribulation of chapel and chemistry, but will never be happy without his Memorial Radio and his electric blanket.

JIM GILLIAM

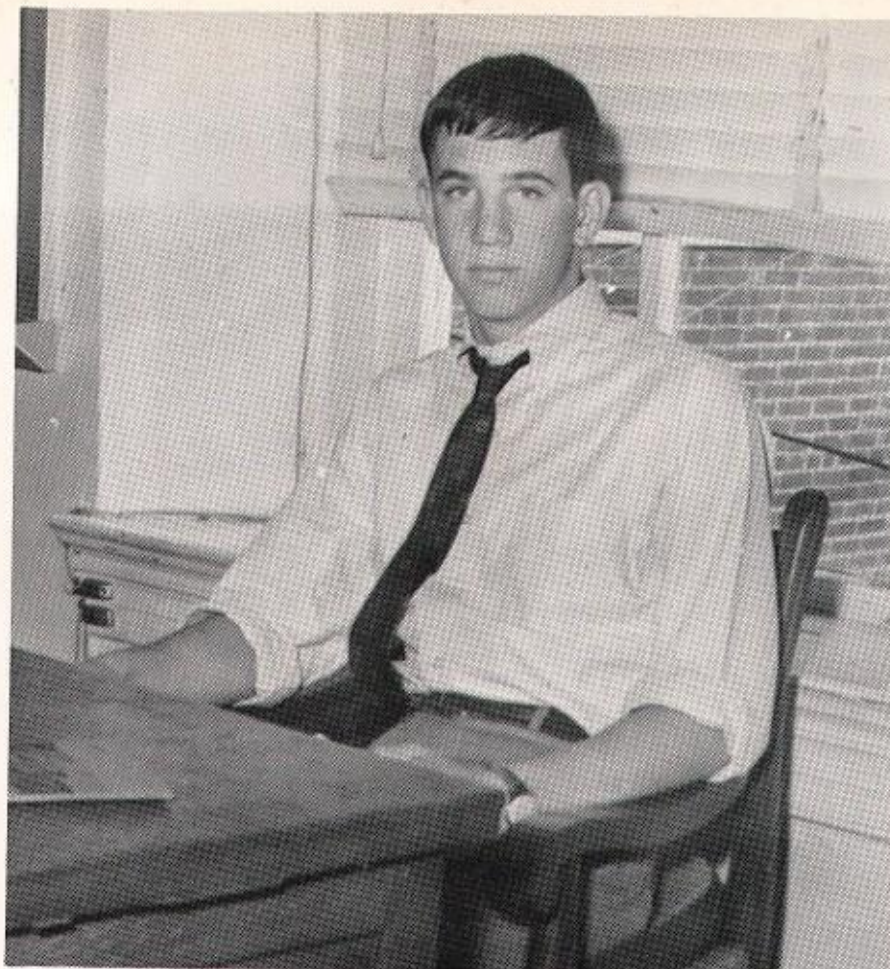

After completing his Texaco Scholarship and tenure abroad, Jim "took courage" to the barbaric Philistines of the High School, and, more especially, the cavern of his darkroom. "Horace Toad" has done his best to force the United States to return to her mother country, but as yet can only claim Mr. Shaw as an adherent. Not even "Toad's" English tea sessions with the author of the E.R.B. have pushed him through Fourth English, as he cannot adapt to American Literature. With derby, Chamberlain umbrella, British passport, and Punch prominent, "Horace T." will stroll out the gate humming "God Save the Queen."

JOHN GOODWIN

Although John has viewed the changing of many seasons on the Hill, he amazingly remains inconspicuous to those who do not have the pleasure of knowing him. Perhaps his greatest assets are his feet, which boot extra points in the fall, save goals in the winter and spring, and propel him through the "back 40" in pursuit of quail and his career—that of being a wildlife conservationist. John's quiet nature abruptly ceases when he steps on the athletic field, and his abilities as a leader are invaluable to the school. His loyalty and complete unselfishness have been manifest in all that he has undertaken.

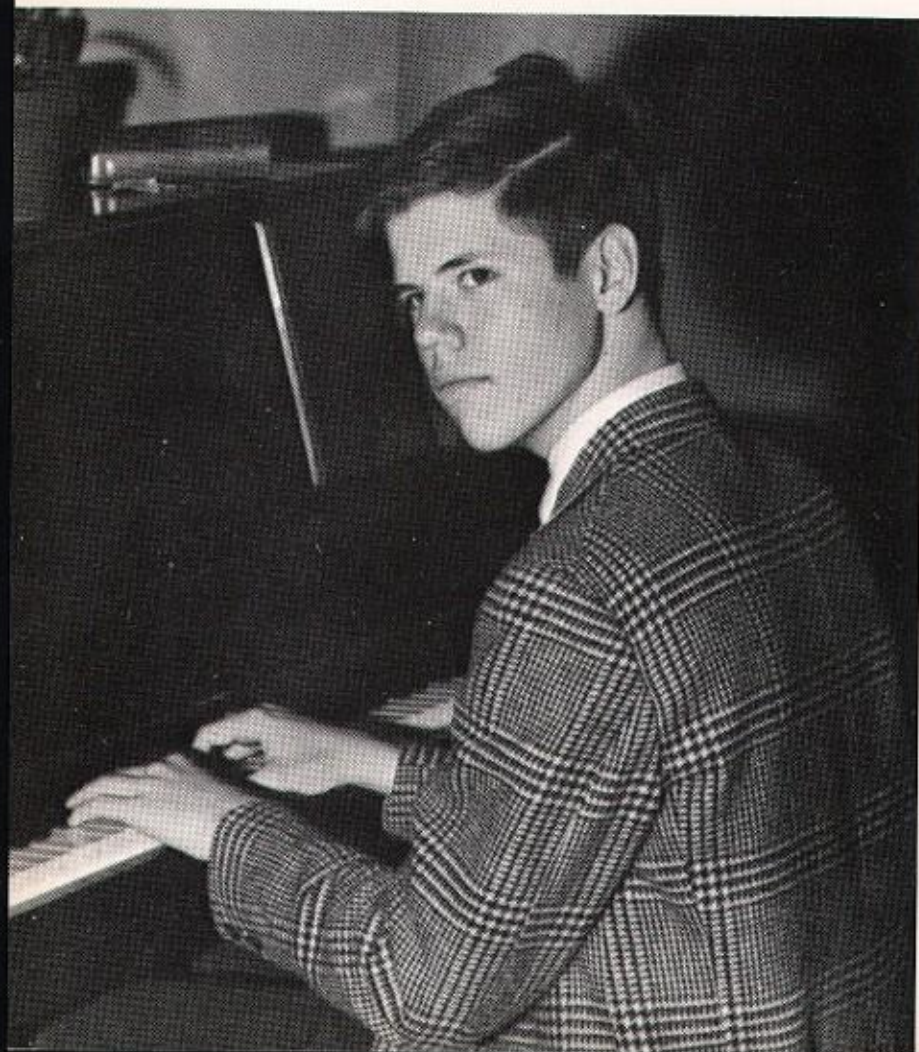

BUCKY GUMP

They call him "Sheriff," but he is really that familiar TV figure the deputy, the loyal sidekick whose quaint, slightly homespun character serves to heighten the heroic qualities of his chief. However, this isn't Dodge City, and Buck is much more than a foil. His positive attitude and enthusiastic effort have been evident in all of his many activities, and his zeal for enforcing the rules is only one manifestation of his unquenchable school spirit. Bucky's Tennessee origins are obvious, but no more so than his amiability, his dedication, and his love for E.H.S.

FRANK HART

"Hiii there!" coos Frank in his most dulcet tone, thus beginning another phone filibuster in the grand old Southern tradition. In his capacity as liaison man and matchmaker to the area girls' schools, "Sweet Tart's" chief assets are a perfectly enunciated "y'all" and an adeptness in conversation equal to his adeptness in high-jumping. A triennial fixture of the schoolroom, Frank has striven diligently to surpass the "Gentleman's C," but remains too much a gentleman to do so.

JOE HATCH

Wandering groggily on his rounds with head cocked pensively to one side and hair unkempt, Joe seems oblivious to the cares of the world. Within this deceptively shabby facade lurks the mind of a devoted scholar of the fine arts—poetry, music, literature, and classical languages. Whether composing a Shakespearean sonnet, a pointed editorial, or the school hymn, Joe's literary talent flashes brilliantly through the haze of disorganization which surrounds him. Amid the strain of numerous extracurricular activities, Joe has managed to maintain his buoyant, entertaining personality; his only real enemy has been Morpheus.

CARRINGTON HERBERT

Carrington has done exceedingly well in clearing the hurdles of E.H.S. life, although his time has been a little slow. "The King" has been able to apply the same wry humor to the fulfillment of his many duties that he displayed in his many undergraduate years. Because of his outstanding leadership, his record number of letters from a Special-K, and his astounding salesmanship of Pink Pearls and protein pills, "Care" has done a great deal to shape the era of school history into which he has fallen. In view of his past, his future is anything but "Gloomy".

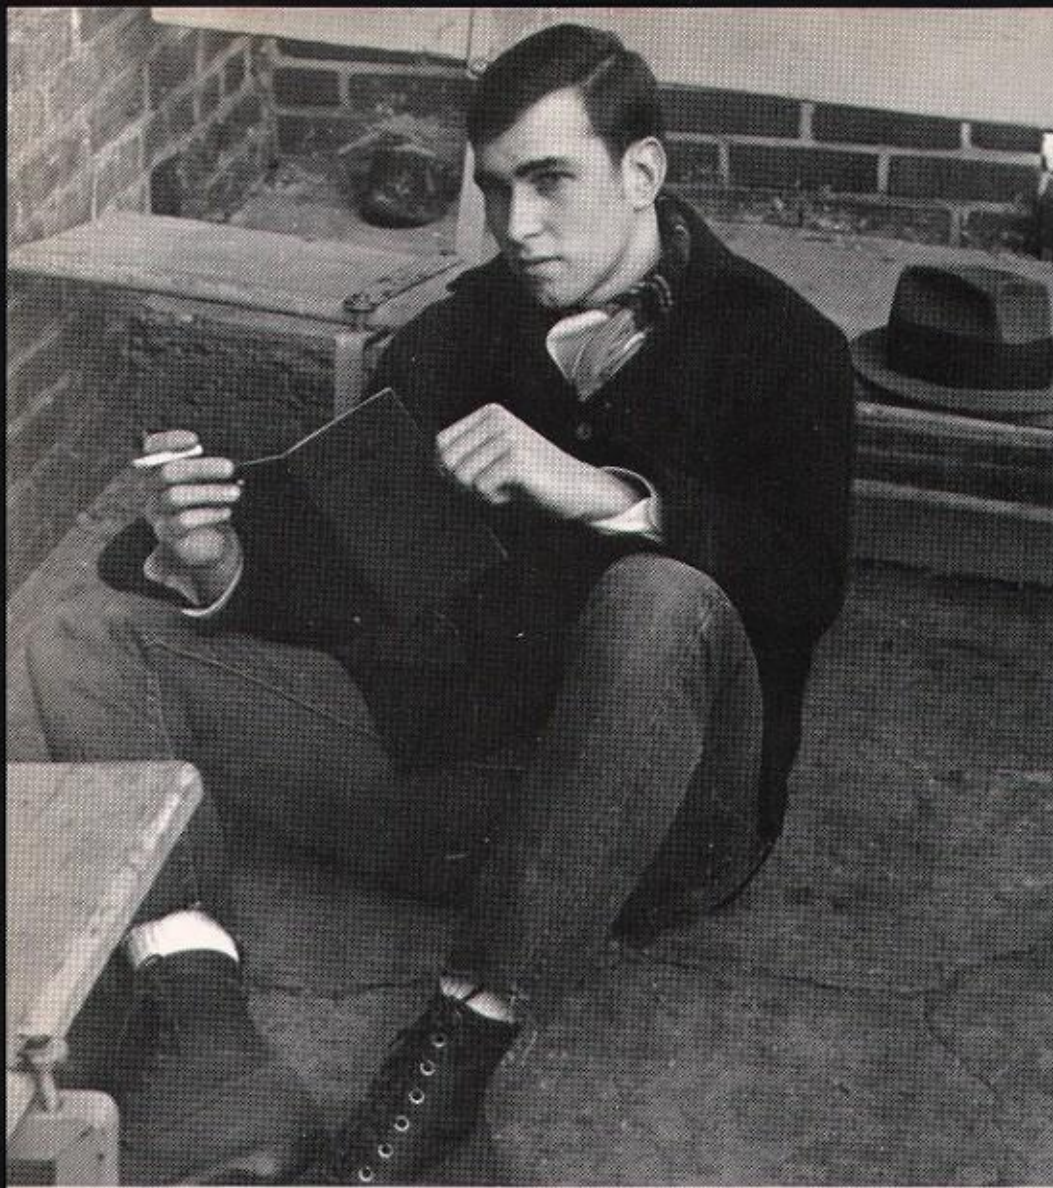

FRASER HUBBARD

"Ole 3-speed" is often seen in low, moping lazily along in a mood of melancholy indifference to the world. However, turn on the pressure, make a demand, and the latent horsepower begins to show. Given time to warm up his wits, he can handle any question in the faculty arsenal, and match insults with the cuttingest. Frequently in the center of the action, because he has been unable to find a way out, he is most dangerous in a fourth-and-one situation. With his sleepy exterior and potent internal capacities, Fraser is well equipped to be the spy who came in from being out to lunch.

PAYNE HINDSLEY

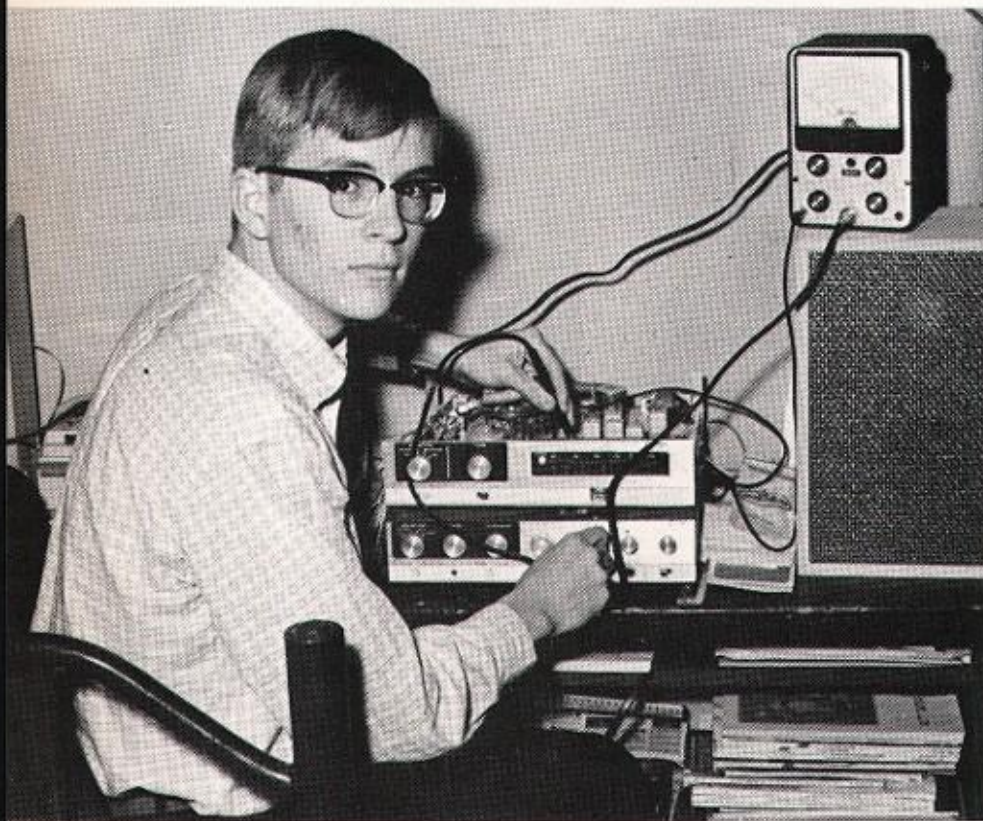

"Ha! Ha! Yeah!" exclaims the suave redhead for the hundredth time, exploring some new aspect of his Pepsi generation. Payne is a keen observer, whose gift for original phraseology adds magic to conversation and zest to the printed page. An expert at giving grief, "Martin" can also be constructive, and has contributed much to a school which has accepted him in spite of his nationality. Although his verbal facility has overshadowed his sincerity of purpose, his friends get the message, "I just got to, got to, got to have it!"

ED INMAN

Ed, a man not afraid to take a gamble, can easily be recognized by his old Sam's hat, construction boots, and illegal Levi's, covered by his camel's-hair overcoat. Although he presents bitter front, those who know him well know that between his sideburns is a feeling individual. When not brushing up on his student handbook and his attitude, Neddy has managed many successful safaris to Washington, where he has bagged several splendid specimens of the local fauna. Ed is a real person and a cool individual.

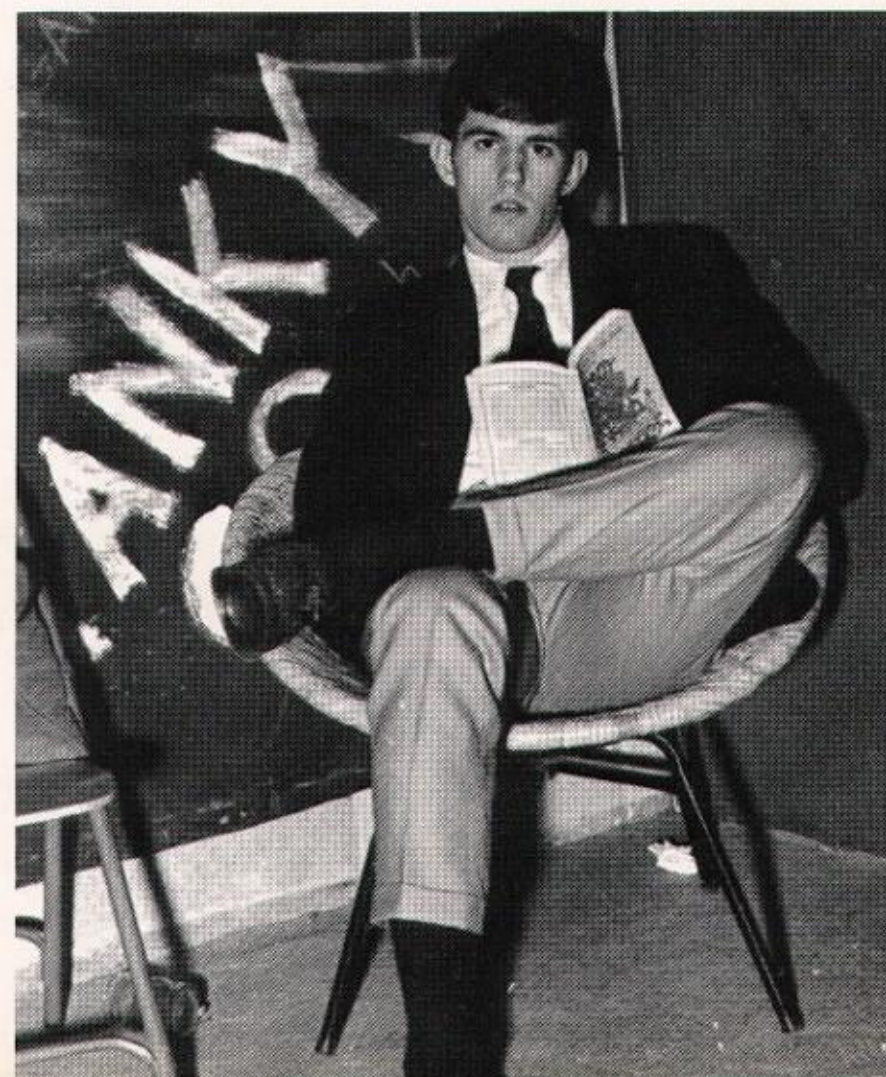

ARTHUR JACKSON

"I'll fix his little red wagon!" cries our irate senior, and proceeds to do so. This can mean anything from raising a lump on a hapless soccer opponent to drowning a neighbor's "soul sound" with his own preferred classics. A certified electronics wizard and math shark, Artie is happiest with a soldering iron in one hand and a log book in the other, putting together a computer to keep track of his Tops orders. He would rather listen than talk, but when he says anything it is a mathematical certainty to be worth hearing.

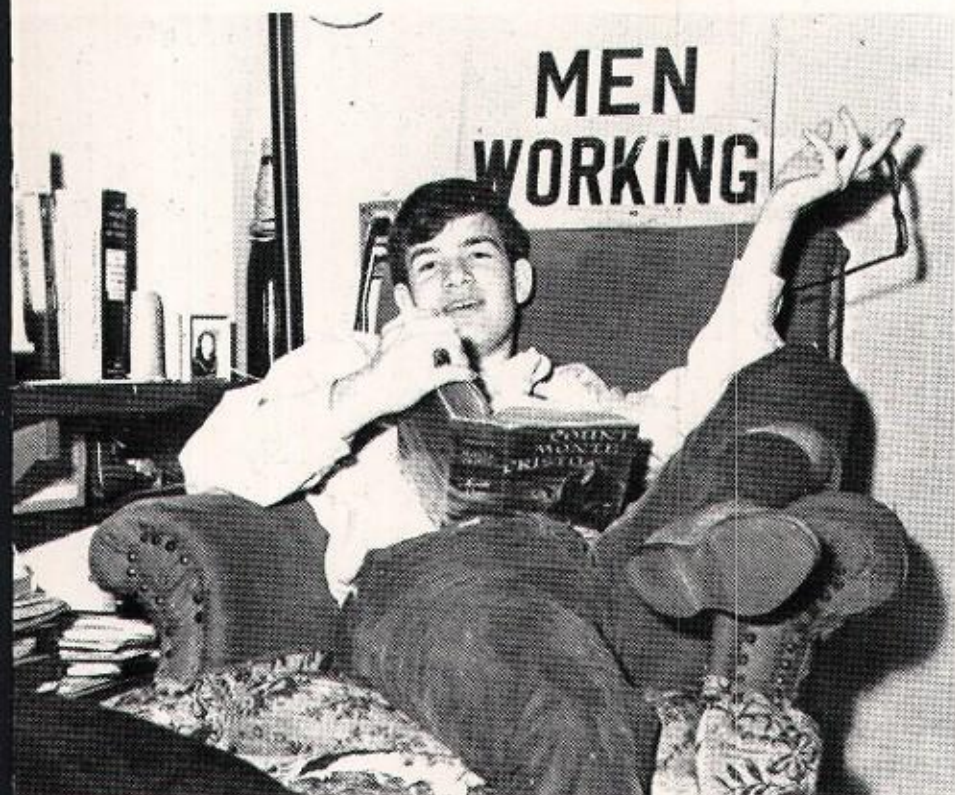

BUZ JACKSON

With a mind like a steel trap for the trivia of life, and like a sieve for the trivia of Physics, Buz bestrides his Pendleton world like an electronic colossus, although on somewhat fragile legs. Meeting the recurring crises of his existence with a characteristic "C'est la vie," Buz reacts with equal nonchalance to academic misfortunes and demerits for illegal appliances. Dramatic productions will miss his trenchcoat, his skilled hands, and his untiring drive; in the most literal sense, Buz was the one who made the scene.

TOM JENKS

Possessed of a talented editorial mind, Tom has an ardent and unflagging desire to improve his school not only through a penetrating observation of its faults but also through hard work and dedication to a wide range of activities. Fighting an "over-emphasis" in athletics he has proven himself that one need not be a sports hero to be noticed. "Tomasito's" principles are high, and he does not mind if the rest of us are out of step with him, as long as he can lead the parade.

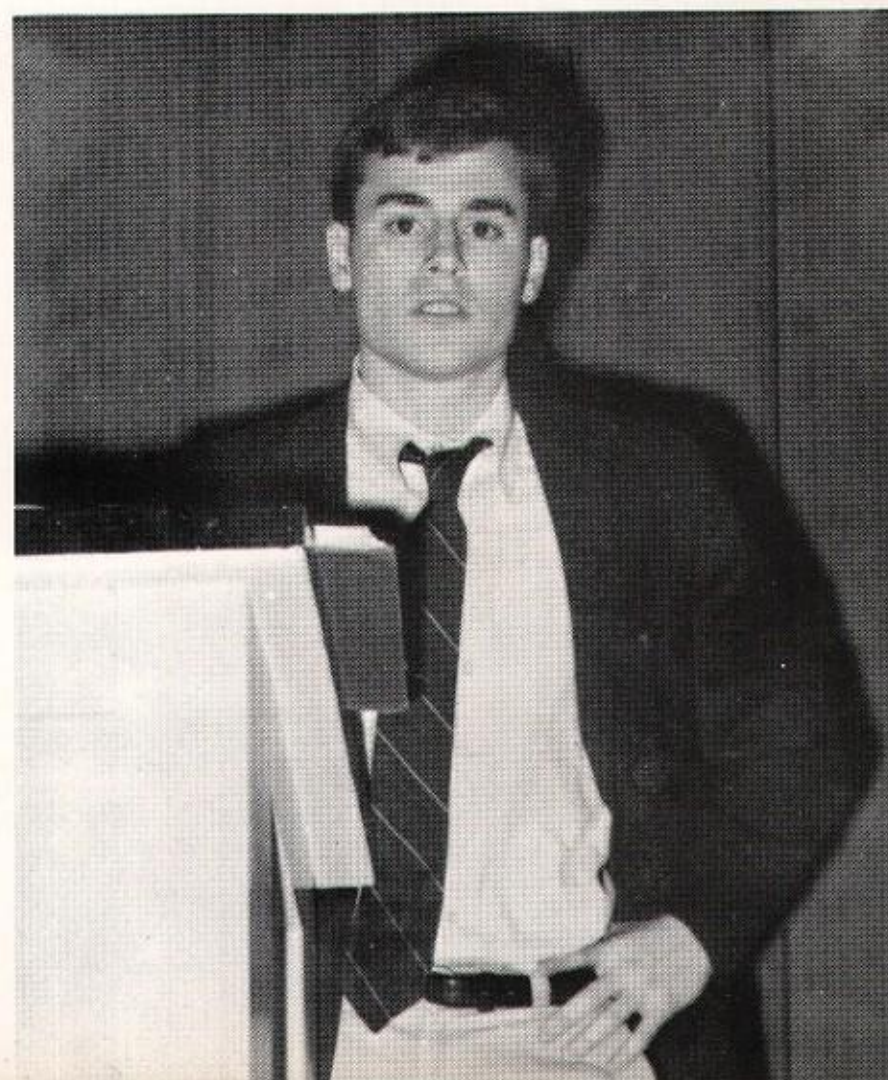

GREGG JONES

An exceptional individual with an unexceptional name, Gregg is a well-adjusted Boy Scout—from trustworthy to reverent. To such routine tasks as waiting and managing he has brought the extra zeal that distinguishes the virtuoso from the time-server. "Sam Brown," as he is called by those wishing to distinguish him from the other Jones boys, is as friendly and outgoing as he is conscientious and responsible. His contributions to the school have been many, and he leaves few opportunities unexplored.

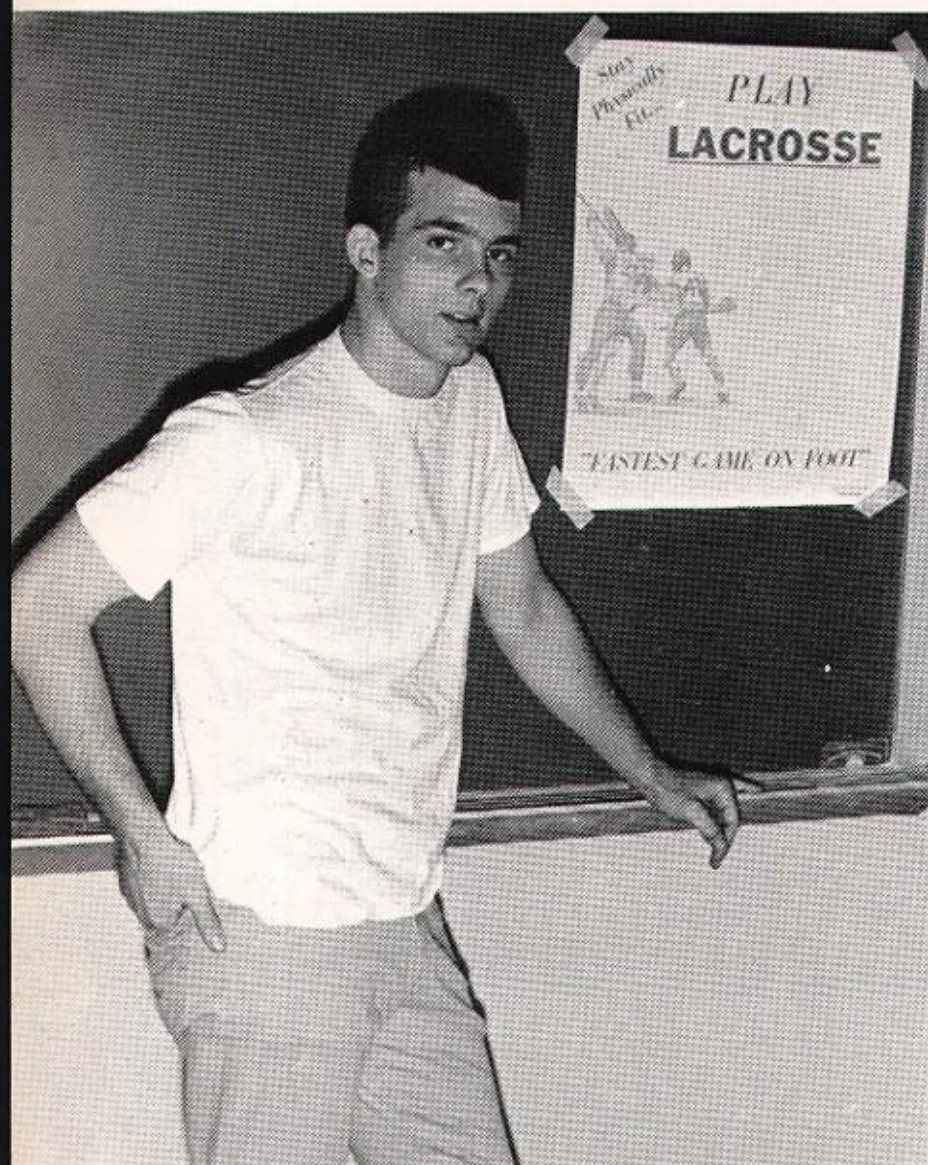

ANDY MARION

Gallop ing in from the right, the "White Knight" has kept up a steady attack on school policies and other injustices. The exuberance of his crusades has beaten down monitorial resistance, and brought such dramatic results as more phones on dorm and fewer magazines in the schoolrooms. When not mending broken bones or shattered lances, Swampy has found time for the Student Investment Club, of which he is President and sole member. Basically cheerful, despite his disapproval of the way the world is run, Andy may be the new messiah the AUH2O boys are waiting for.

WALKER MOORE

"And anyone that disagrees with me is narrowminded!" exclaims Walker, stressing some such point as the status of St. Mary's in relation to school bounds, or the lack of a swimming pool. Though probably suffering the consequences of his latest "toad move," George is always ready to engage in a lively conversation with the nearest person or telephone. Walkie combines a basically easy-going nature, the explosiveness of nitroglycerin, a surface cynicism, and a risqué sense of humor to produce a personality all his own.

RANDY MORRIS

Though much disheveled, "Randy-pooh" enlivens any gathering with his belated but sparkling arrival. His wit and affability have led to many successes in his blooming social life; and "Randi's" predilection for arduous physical work, coupled with his leadership qualities, has led to repeated conquests on the athletic fields. Randy has been remarkably able to combine the seemingly incongruous traits of dedication and lovability in his own individual formula for success.

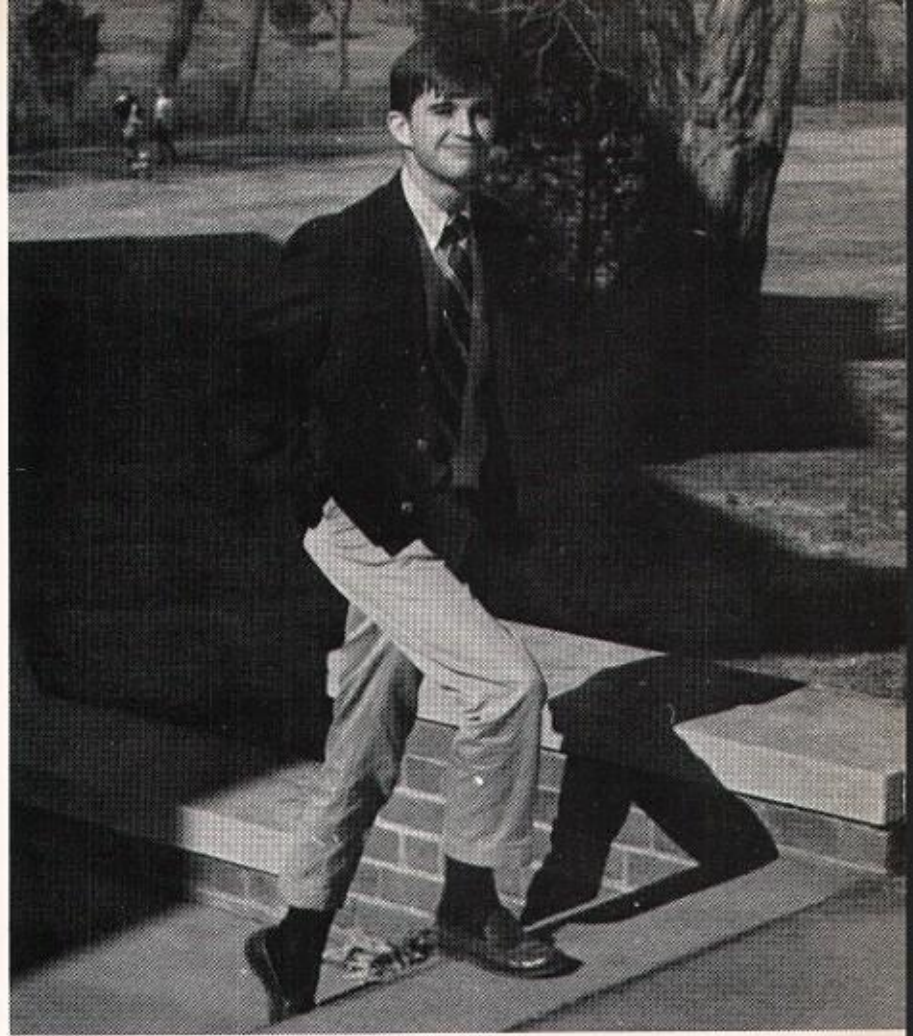

KEN NICHOLSON

A real worker in any field he attempts, Nick has a passion for speed, either in getting around the track or through a passage of Latin. Nothing but the best will do, although he is not always sure what to do after he gets it. Seemingly well informed about everything, and always willing to share his information, Zorba has shown the school what determined pessimism can achieve. He scoffs at the possibility of his ever being Number One; but no one tries harder.

BILL OLD

Having a duel of wits with Bill is like playing water polo with a piranha—strictly for experts, and you're probably going to bleed anyway. Fortunately he is both easy-going and good-natured, and so doesn't slash either as deeply or as often as he might. Although he is a capable, if small, athlete, Levi is best known for his quick understanding, his facility with words, and his semi-photographic memory. The brilliance of his intellect is exceeded only by the fertility of his ingenuity.

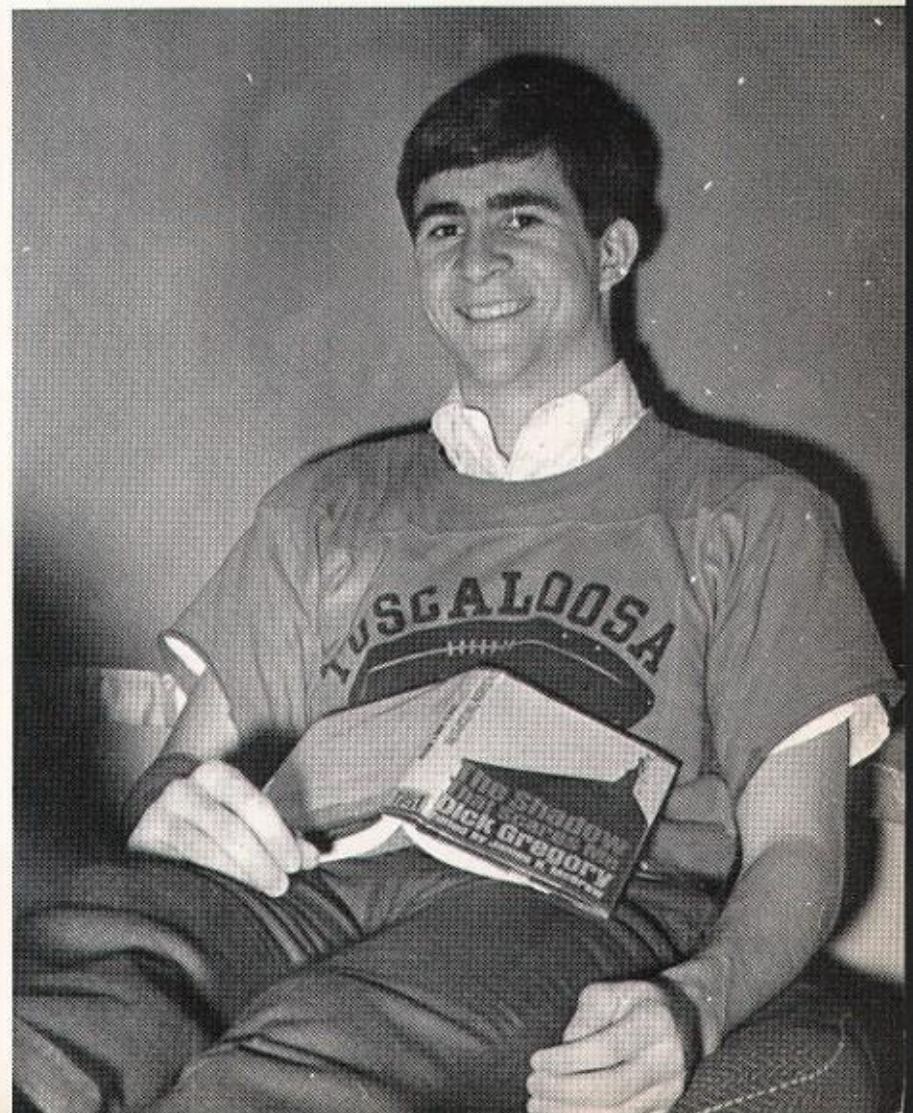

ROBBINS PANCAKE

"Starlings Flapjack," "Sparrows Waffle"—his nicknames are enough to make any bird flip—came to us a skillfully blended batter of academic brilliance, athletic competence, and social congeniality, seasoned with irreverent wit. He has toasted cheerfully, if briefly, on the E.H.S. griddle, and has acquired a proper texture, much academic lore, and many friends. Neither crusty of exterior nor soft in the center, Robbins qualifies eminently for the comments, "well-rounded" and "well done!"

DAVID PARTLOW

The container is short, dark, sturdily constructed, and conservatively wrapped. The contents include courtesy, intelligence, determination, puckish humor, and volatile spirits. The label reads: "Packaged in Tuscaloosa—for adult use only." David's basic maturity is as evident as his talent for dis-raising is concealed. His stay has been brief, but he has learned much and has contributed much, and he has built an enviable reputation to leave behind.

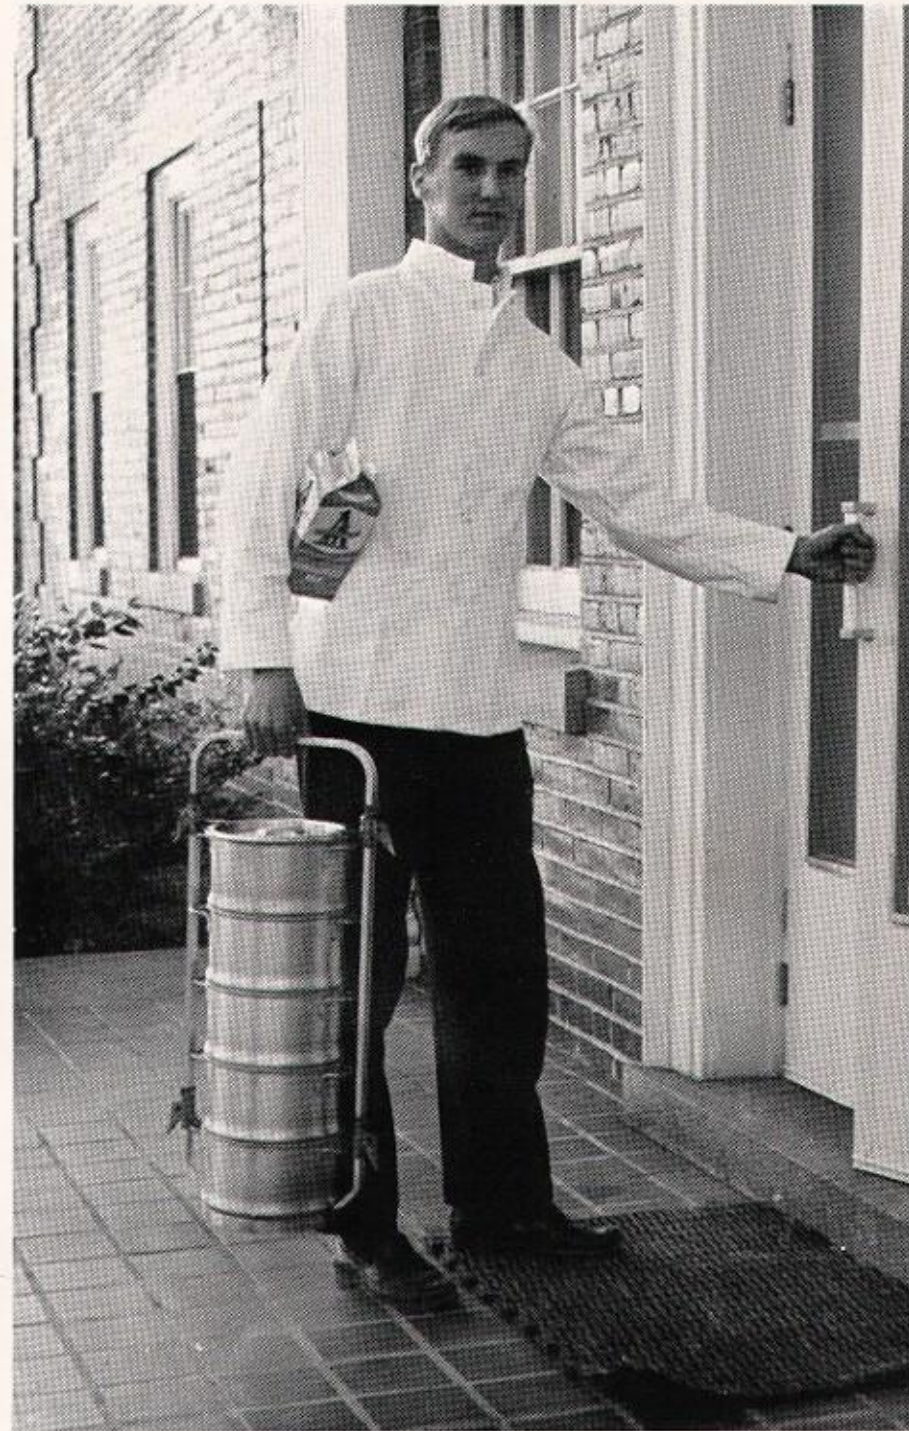

CHRIS PATTERSON

With his unkempt mop of hair somewhat obscuring his tortoise-shell glasses, "Pistol Pete Patterson" bops on the scene projecting his "Northern Preppie" image. His mod appearance, however, belies a deep traditional outlook on life that has led him to enjoy the aristocratic fox hunt, the conversations of W.B.R. and the world of painting. In the afternoon Chris has contributed his invaluable coaching talent in three sports. Refusing to be handicapped by his "Yankee twang," Chris will always be "grooving on a Sunday afternoon."

CORDY RAWLES

On parade, Gordo is so correct a guardsman, such a model of propriety, that it is hard to picture him as the wildly garbed witch-doctor who hilariously terrorizes Third McGuire, or the bright pink tennis player who screams his anger across the net. However, he can be all three, as well as the robot brain that can solve any problem, if properly programmed. A fastidious perfectionist, Gordy stands—very erectly—as a sincere and serious worker.

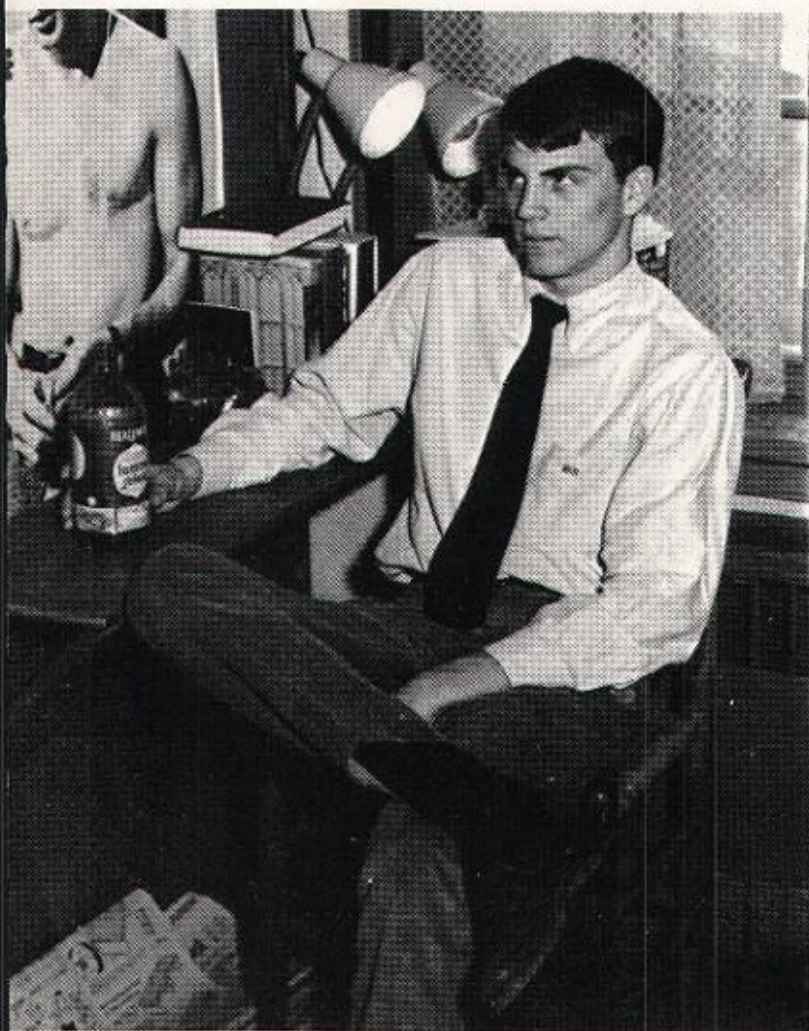

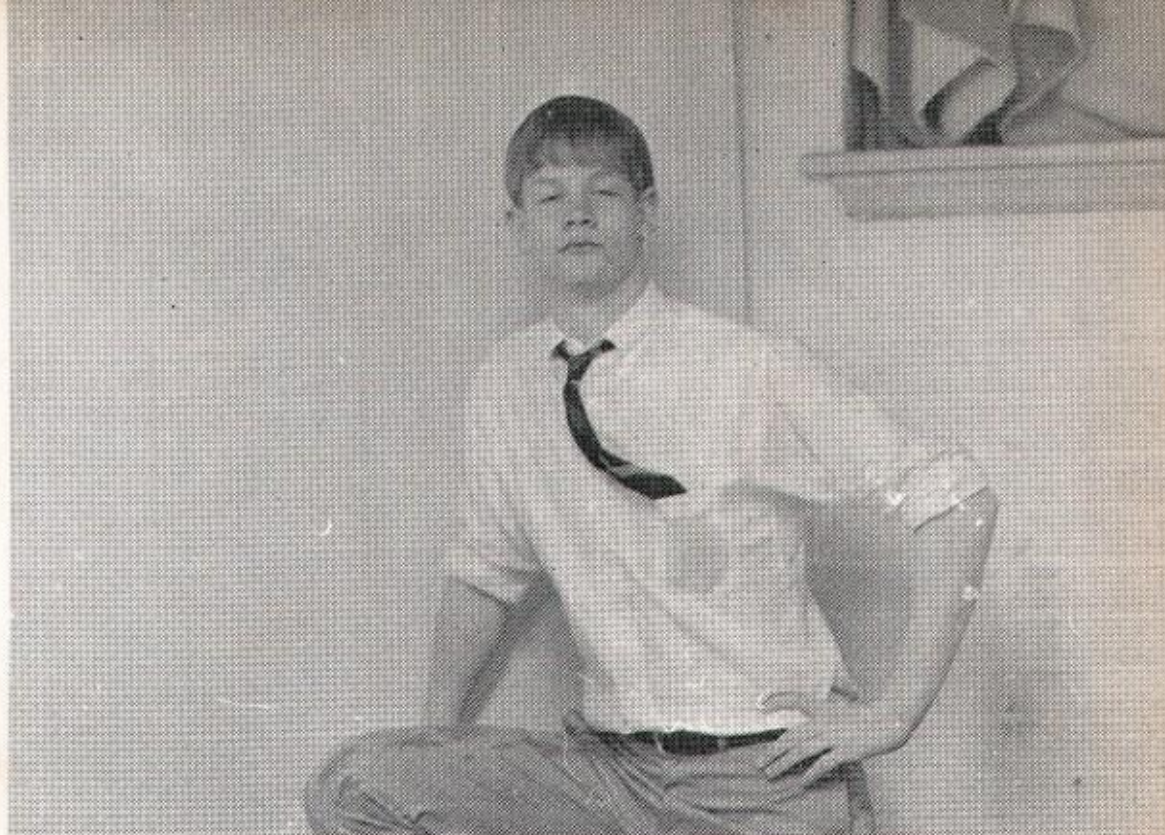

CARTER REDD

The individual known in Spanish class as "Rojo, the puerile fathead" is quite an interesting person with a wide variety of emotions and interests, such as his exuberant assault on the pool table, his quiet appreciation of folk guitar, and his inspired attempt to raise a banana plant—without the benefit of sunlight. Unfortunately, Carter has chosen to spend more time studying Dylan than his schoolwork, with the result that his studies have suffered. Though he faces frequent rebuffs, he has retained an open friendliness. Never mind if he "ain't got no culture"—knowing him has been a memorable experience.

BOB RHETT

Whether passively resisting compulsory religion or actively revolting against disciplinary codes, Bob has been the intellectual, radical idealist, and general dissenter who refuses to conform to anybody or anything. The many principles to which the dissenter dogmatically adheres have caused him to crusade continually for the improvement of the school. Bob has kept himself constantly busy, whether it is snapping pictures, cooking steaks in the dark room, or studying to maintain his average. Bob's flamboyant character, high ideals, and raw intelligence have kept both students and faculty on their toes.

ROB RINEHART

While chewing his nails and lemons, Rob is likely to retort a sarcastic "You reckon, Jack?" to the trite comment of some unthinking classmate. For "Roger's" wit has enabled him to discern the pretenses of his associates, as well as to add a sardonic levity to campus conversations. Sporting the jaunty walk of an experienced horseman, "Rocky's" interests lean to polo fields and to copying the efficient style of Bobby Richardson. With his mathematically inclined mind, Rob will have no trouble overcoming the geometrical obstacles of the future.

JOHN ROGERS

Young, small, and quiet, "Rocky" has gone about the business of earning his diploma with the intense seriousness that characterize his approach to any important endeavor. This attended to he has taken an unobtrusive place in the life of the school, showing an even temper and courteous manner that have made him generally well liked. What he lacks in notoriety, he makes up in maturity of purpose and in achievement.

RAND ROMAIN

Our walking information center, Rand is a friendly soul, whose faculty for finding out about the faculty from the faculty is equaled only by his cheerful willingness to share his findings with his fellows. He is a shrewd man of business and a good organizer, whose talents have served many school organizations well. Seeing him rolling along on his rounds, clad in his huge W.W. II greatcoat, few would expect his unusual agility; but he manages to have his eye on the ball, his nose to the grindstone, all at once and with no strain. For the latest in information, or to get any thankless task performed efficiently—apply at the Rotunda.

JERE ROYALL

In a constant battle against commissary refuse and disorder in any form, Jere is a just and effective enforcement officer. Conscientiously absorbing knowledge in every spare moment, he is nevertheless always prepared to discuss any subject—light, serious, or fantastic. A calm rock set in a confused sea, he has shown that frenzied activity does not always produce as much as interested dedication. Combining friendship and leadership, "Spuddy" is another prize specimen from a fine family of potatoes.

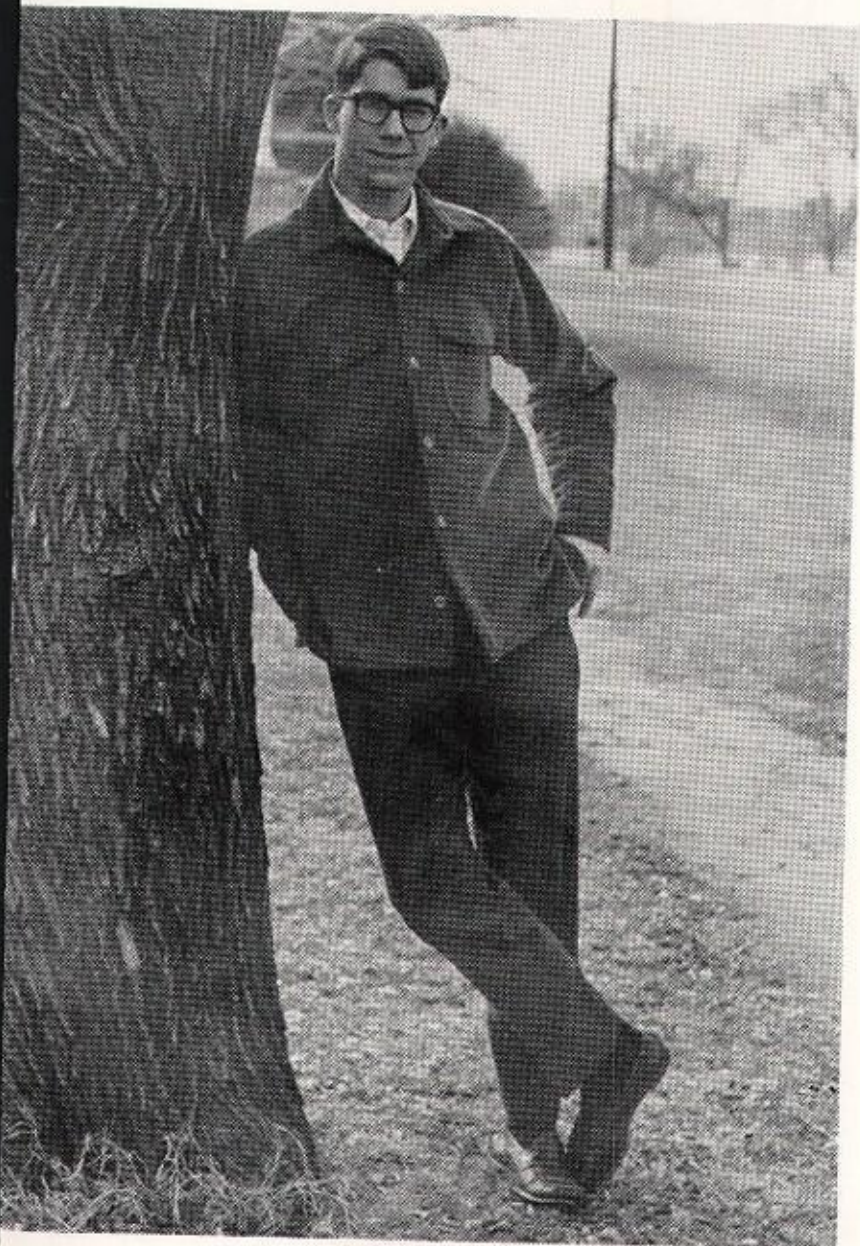

BRUCE SANDERS

Alternating between a gracious geniality and a hair-trigger temper, Bruce is one of our more mercurial members. Strictly a summer soldier, he hibernates impatiently, dreaming of White Stone adventures past and future. He pursues his goals doggedly, whether athletic, social, academic, or sartorial, and has created an "image" of a well-dressed, well-rounded individual that corresponds closely with his real self.

ROB SANDERS

One would hardly suspect that this mild-mannered philosopher can often turn into a mighty "galoot" who attempts to induce silence on his dorm after lights by creating "NOISE!" But in spite of his carefree attitude toward academic pressures and life in general, Rob has taken his responsibilities seriously and has always maintained his high sense of humor. Managing to put the value of grades in their proper unimportant place, Rob is an enthusiastic competitor, dedicated to great leaps in the Field House, and to small—but good—poems in the library. As the graduation bell tolls and he flies off to Spain, we wish Roberto buena suerte with his Maria.

HANK SCHMULLING

Hank's successes here have come in assorted flavors—his impeccable sartorial choices (complemented by twenty-four Gant originals), his casual mastering of Latin syntax, and his unparalleled confounding of every pronouncing gazetteer. "Joe's" most enviable talent, however, is his capacity for keeping his head while all around him are losing theirs. Although this causes others to complain of his indifference, he has an ambitious spirit, however well camouflaged. Finally, "Schmooling's" genuine sincerity will carry him a long distance down life's fairways, with very few detours into the rough.

BRUCE SHARPE

Immaculately dressed in fashionable threads and tassel loafers, "Sharper" manages to saunter easily through each day without such things as pressure or worry. With his wit and affable smile, Bruce has never let himself be corrupted by any prevailing bitterness. A scrappy hustler, he concentrates on making every shot a winner as well a crowd-pleaser. Never fazed by seemingly impassable situations, "Bruce-E" somehow is able to circumvent them; as he says, "I ain't too proud."

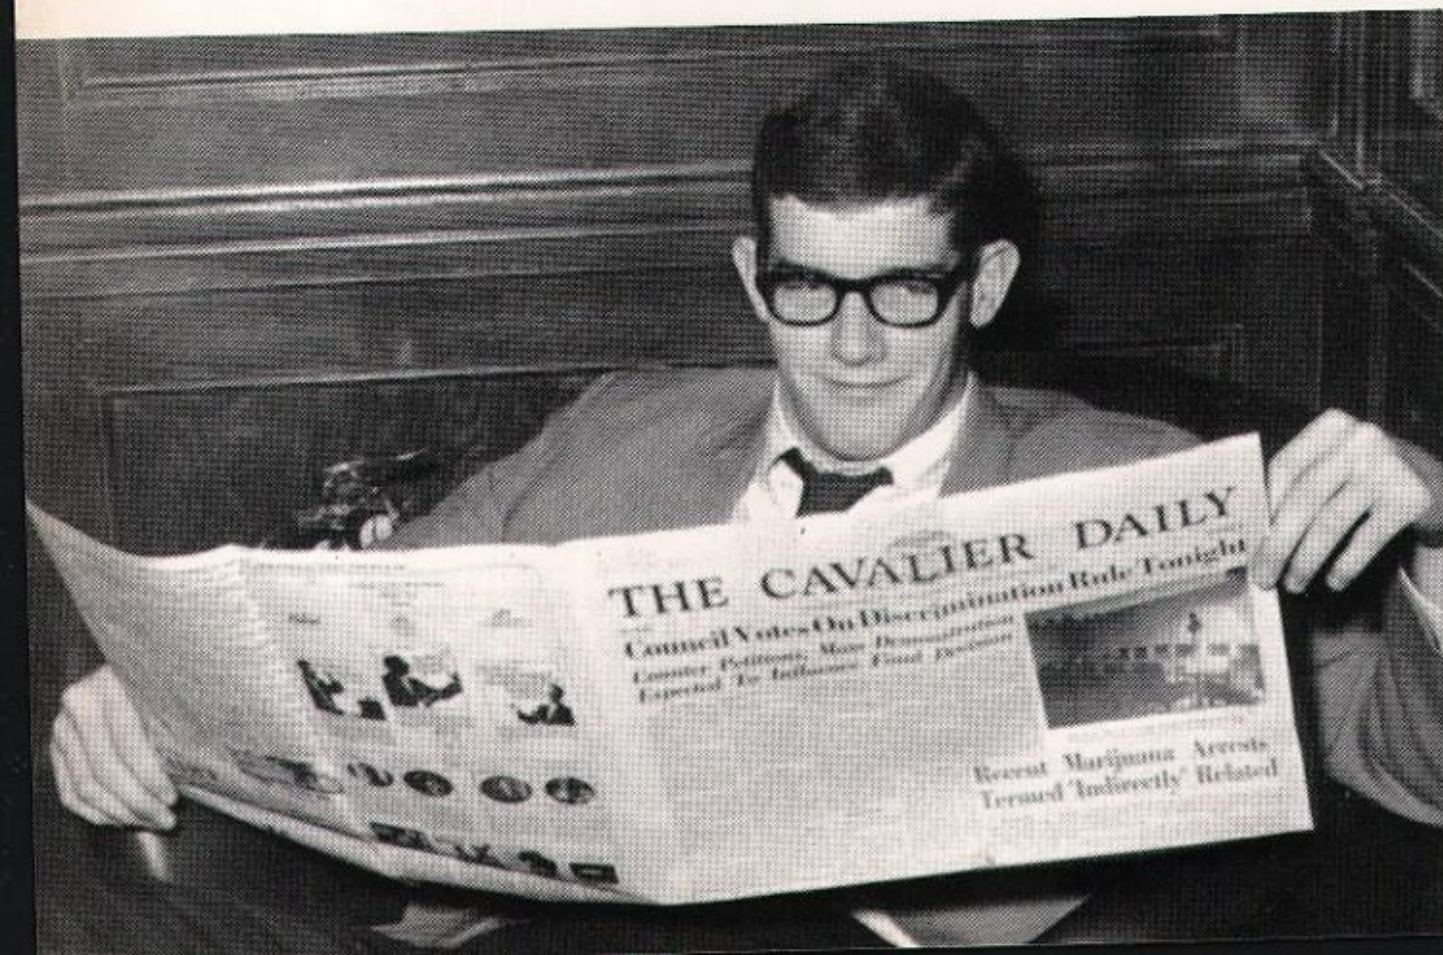

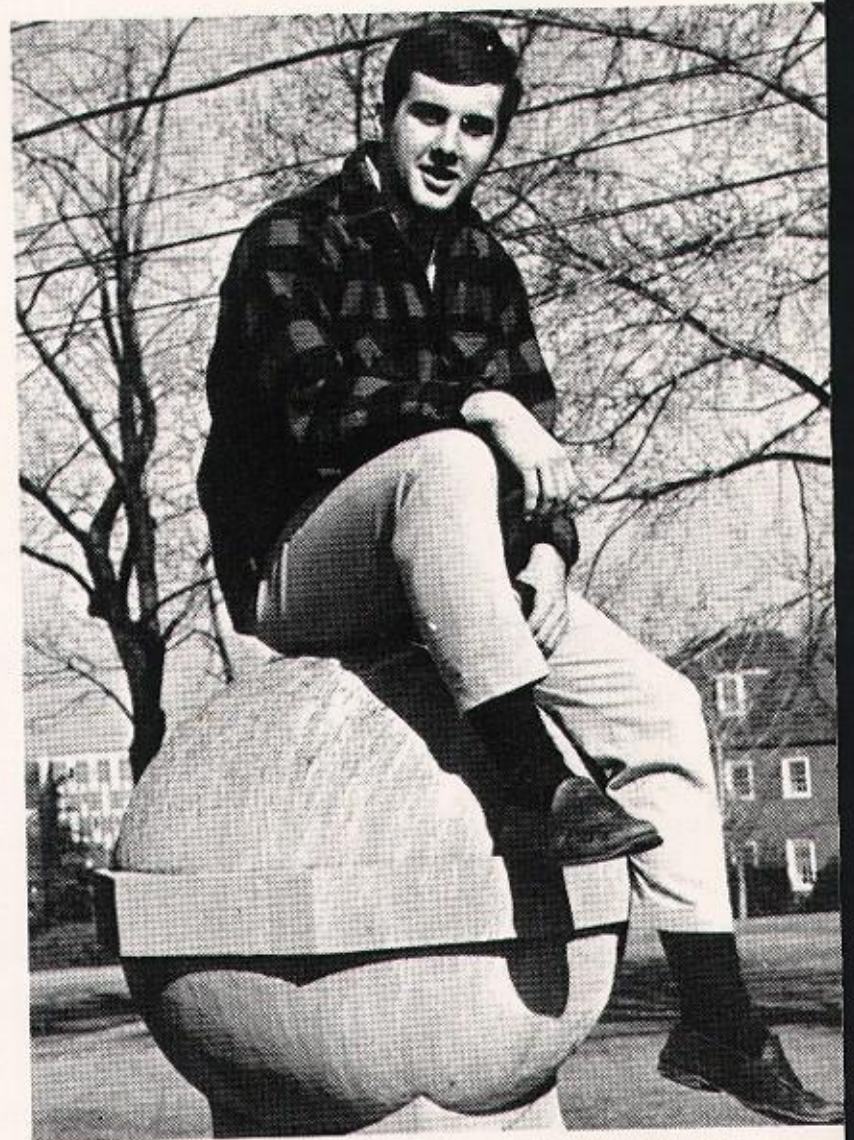

MARK SKOGGARD

A poetic and sensitive soul inhabiting the muscular and hirsute body of a . . . well, lower primate—that is our Noble Savage. Jaw jutting forward in grim determination, Mark advances with equally murderous intent upon physical and metaphysical opposition, colliding unconcernedly with any posts or other obstacles that may have escaped his myopic vision. Willing to tackle anything he can see, and to grope for vision of the things he can't see, our "Animal" is an excellent example of diligent application, at home in cave or library.

ARCHIE SUTTON

A member of the higher intellectual cult, Archie's thoughts are not bound by the immediate limits of E.H.S., but can be found exploring the woods and fields of Robert Frost or pondering solutions to the latest world crisis. "Ahhchie", along with an obvious drawl, possesses an unusual maturity which invests his acts of leadership with a "casual excellence." Whether fighting to hold Fairfax together or leading the High List, Arch has enthusiastically participated in school life, and the "Tired American" is never tired of success.

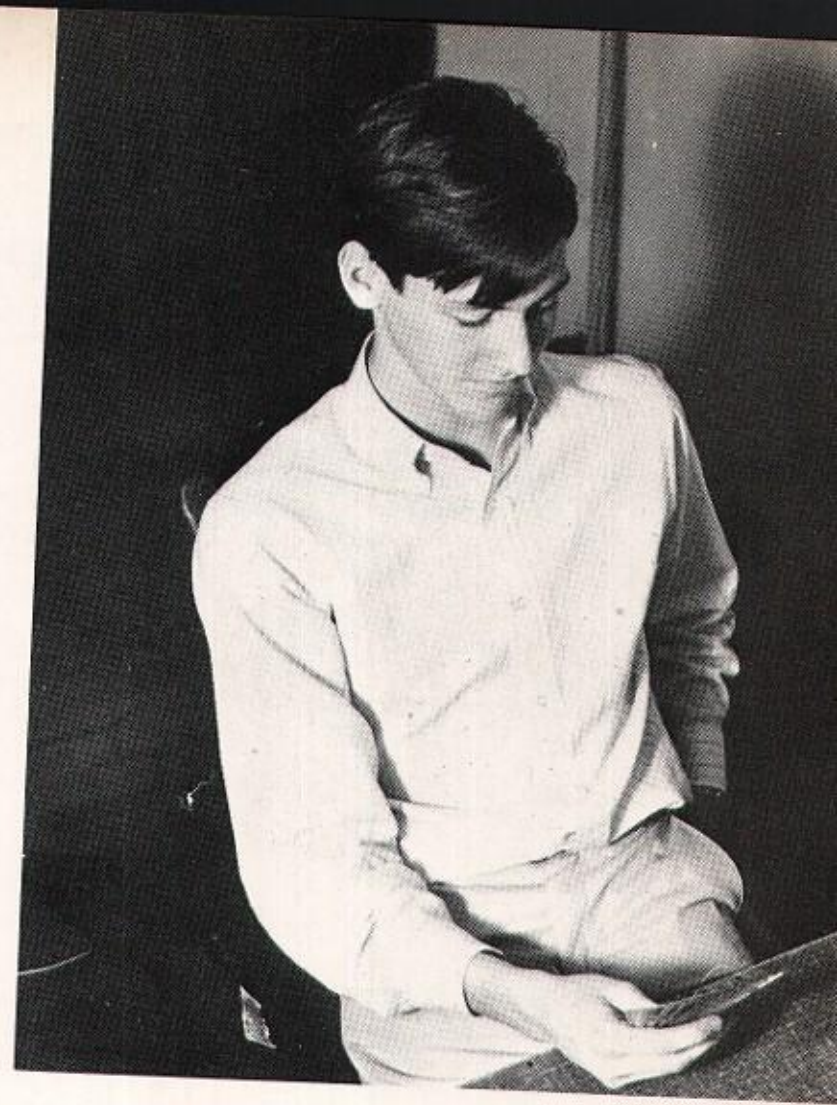

MARK VARNER

A Gulliver among the Lilliputians, our "Big Dog" is fortunately easy-going and slow-moving, so that neither has he been unduly irritated by the vicissitudes of school life, nor has he squashed anyone in his progress, at least not physically. However, he has been known to flatten lesser mortals metaphorically, with devastating shafts of his Roanoke wit. A character who has customarily been a giant-sized problem to heavy-weight wrestlers, foolish centers, and sensitive students, Mark has stopped growing in size, but not in stature.

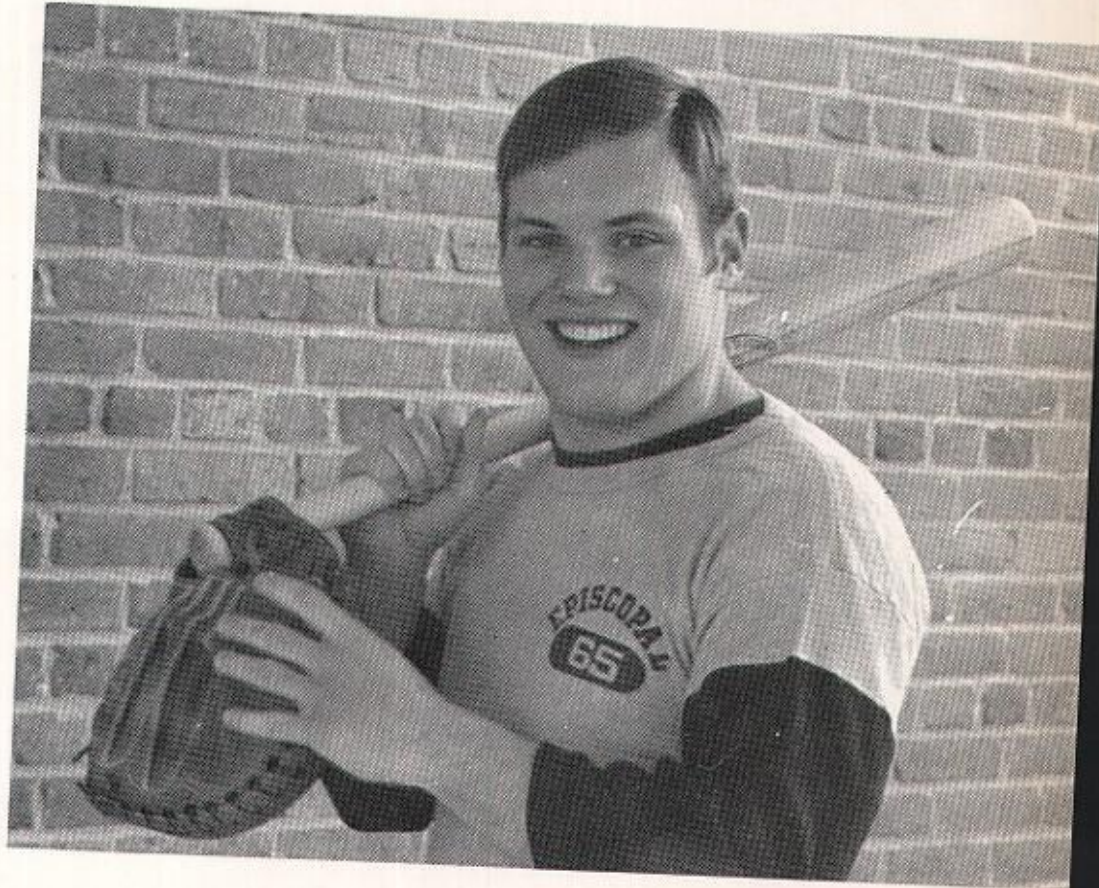

GEORGE WILLIAMS

A coldly brilliant master of finesse, whose inquisitive nose beneath a swooping lock of hair juts challengingly over a pool table or across a chessboard, "Wildcat" is an artist who can play baseball with a sliderule. One of our most faithful followers of Goren, "Rudolph" bids to succeed with a Washington accent and a California manner. His logical mind always obeys the guiding maxim: "No problem is so difficult that it can't be graphed."

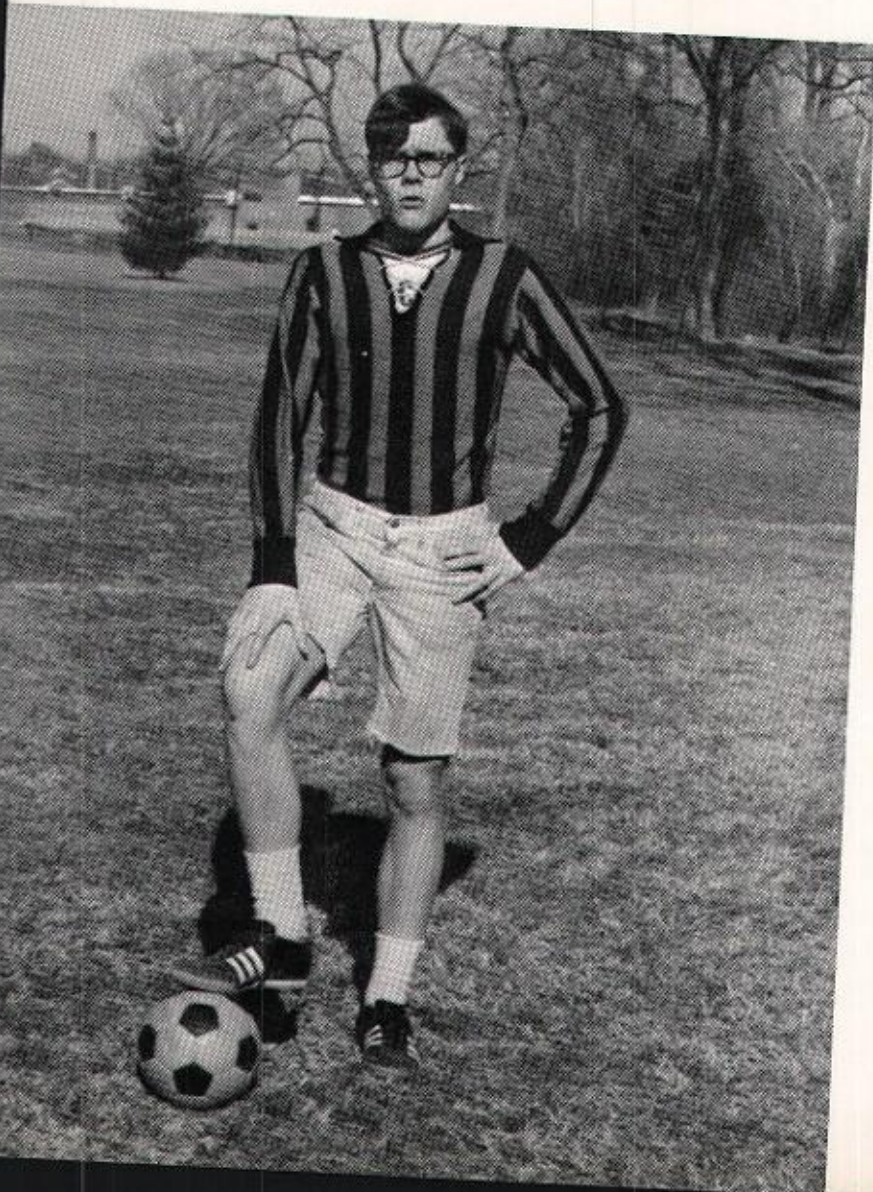

REX WILSON

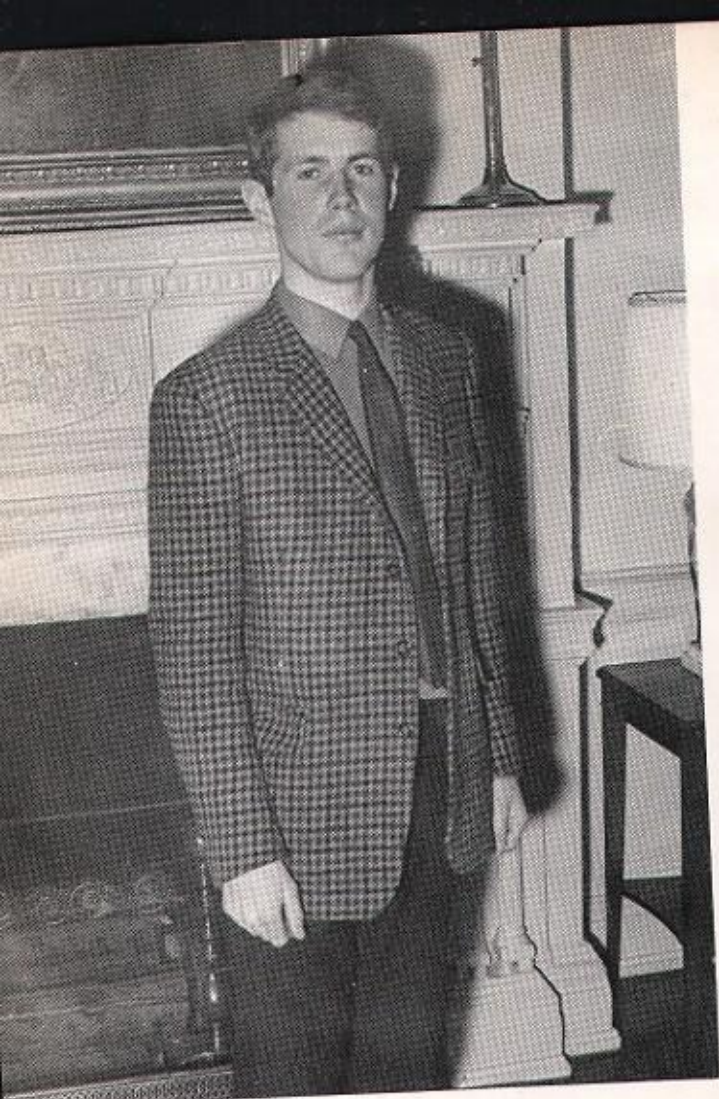

Rexie's long and exciting tenure of reign in Alexandria has been marked by "The King's" attempt to make E.H.S. conform to him. His exceptional oratorical talents have made him an excellent person to listen to, as it's useless to try to talk. A true baseball addict, Rex joyously awaits his Wilson season, when he can play baseball and talk at the same time, thus utilizing his two greatest talents at once. Rex has not really known the value of study, but his overpowering personality has made up for his inattention to books. Truly, "All the world's a stage, and Rex has forgotten his lines."

DAVE WRIGHT

"You beggah!" screams David, as he smashes his vintage soccer ball toward some imaginary goal, or pursues the wild dog with the zeal of Teddy Roosevelt stalking a trust. Honestly interested in helping the other fellow, Dave has displayed a genuine fervor in all that he has undertaken. His chemically oriented mind and tactical finesse on fields of felt or mud are sure to make our "Pele Mosconi" a triple-threat — anything he can't shoot or dribble around, he will probably emulsify.

TIMOTHY WILLIAM SHARRATT

First Year—Chronicle, Chapel Committee,
B.L.S., Varsity Soccer, Tennis

Our representative from the English Speaking Union, Tim has been a versatile and successful contributor to the life of the school. He is an athlete, a scholar, and a gentleman of discernment, as well as living proof that a true-blue Englishman can co-exist with the E.H.S. haircut rule without the loss of identity. We have enjoyed his company and profited from his presence.

Endowed with neither superior size nor speed, this year's Varsity managed to compile a respectable 4-4 record before being crushed in its final game by an exceptionally strong Woodberry team. Though the magnitude of the final defeat cast a decided tinge of disappointment on the season as a whole, there were still some bright spots. There were no "superstars" but rather a great many spirited and hardworking boys.

A particular standout was Captain Carrington Herbert, who guided the team and set school pass receiving records in total receptions and yardage. Assisting him were Co-alternate Captains Fraser Hubbard and Rex Wilson. A real work-horse, Fraser repeatedly demonstrated the determination and hardrunning ability of a good fullback while Rex, the offensive left tackle, consistently provided good blocking.

The offensive backfield also boasted the elusive and and shifty Jon Barrett, whose twisting runs rarely failed to gain yardage. Junior quarterback Bill French had a fine year both in directing the offense with impressive poise and in passing. Bill broke long-standing school records in number of passes completed and total yards in the air. Tough Jess Erwin provided excellent blocking from his wingback position and was also a fine pass receiver. Beetle Smith aided in the consistent ground game of the Maroon from fullback, substituting after Hubbard had been sidelined by injuries.

The inexperienced offensive line did remarkably well, considering only two lettermen had returned. Led by Rex Wilson and Tim Haley at left guard, they managed to make holes in the opposition's defense, enabling our runners to pile up good yardage. Rob Sanders played the left end position and caught several clutch passes during the season. Newcomers Buck Gump at center, George Butler at right guard, and Lee McLaughlin at right tackle improved steadily during the season.

The defensive line was anchored by the tenacious Mark Skoggard, Randy Morris, and "Big Dog" Mark Varner. Other regulars included Jim Garnett, Buck Hall, Joe Simpson, and Walkie Moore.

Outstanding in the linebacker corps was Charley Frazier, who set a school record for most tackles. Flanking Charley were juniors Bill Lewis and Beetle Smith, with help from Armfield Cannon. Competent pass defense was displayed by halfbacks David Partlow, Archie Sutton, and Lyles Carr, and speedy safety man Peter Vandevanter.

Special mention should be made of three-year letterman John Goodwin, a sure—(if left—) footed placekicker, and also of rangy John Genet, who handled the kick-off duties.

After an opening loss to Gonzaga, the Maroon traveled to Virginia Episcopal School and came back with a crushing victory. Bill French was flawless in the air, throwing four touchdown passes. The offense was unstoppable, and scored from all over the field as the goal line was crossed eight times. After a heart-breaking loss to St. Albans, when the Maroon went into the fourth quarter with a 13-0 lead, only to have the Saints score three quick touchdowns, the team won two impressive victories over Richmond opponents, St. Christopher's and Collegiate. It will be hard to forget Fraser Hubbard's effort in the first game as he almost single handedly carried the Maroon to victory, running the ball over thirty times for over 150 yards. The offense also sparkled in the Collegiate contest, marching for scores on almost every drive.

The Varsity lost their first Prep League game against Randolph-Macon in a tough defensive battle. The Maroon defense continually halted the Yellow-jacket's potent offense, only to have them score on quick drives. The High School's offense had no trouble marching between the fifteen-yard lines, but numerous errors prevented any scores.

With their record standing at 3-3, the team pulled ahead with a complete victory over an overpowered St. Anthony's squad. This proved to be the last bright moment in the season as the Maroon failed even to score in their last two encounters against Good Counsel and Woodberry, two teams that completely outclassed them. The Woodberry game, played before a sellout crowd, was a great disappointment for the Maroons, who had hoped for an upset over their heavily favored rivals.

Sincere thanks go to Head Coach Walden and his assistants, Mr. Seidule and Mr. Shelor, and trainer Buddy Rogers for their efforts and devotion.

Junior Varsity

Brilliantly coached by Messrs. Phillips, deSarno, and Yarborough, the J.V.'s finished with a 7-1 season.

The hard-running backfield of Jim Chickering, Ken Nicholson, and Marshall Washburn, coupled with the precision passing of David Clarke to ends Bob Coffin and Jim Morton, resulted in consistent gains. Co-captain Payne Hindsley at center, guards Jae Elliott, Greg Cruze, Chuck Clay, and tackles Hank Schmulling and Bruce Sanders adroitly pierced holes in the line for the runners.

The defense, led by Co-captains Stephen Fitts and Paige Smith, with hard-hitting linesmen O'Brien, Naul, Prewitt, and Johnston, plus the fluid pass coverage of backs Childs, Old, and Bray, kept the J.V.'s opponents to a minimum of scoring and proved to be the backbone of team spirit.

The two most outstanding games were against Good Counsel and Woodberry. A J.V. team at the apex of their morale was pitted against a superb Woodberry team. After gaining forty yards on a slyly-executed post-kickoff play, Washburn romped across from the 20 for his first touchdown of the year. The second score was a pass to Bob Coffin by Clarke. The win over W.F.S. was a fitting climax to a great season.

Slippery Paws

"Get 'em, You Toads!"

The Marauders, playing their first season as a team separate from the J.V.'s, finished with a commendable 3-3 record.

Quarterback Frank Hart and his three horsemen, and/or horses, notably "The Cell" Bergland and Billy Sullivan, were able, due to the fine blocking of tackles Bill Webster and David Luther, to stage some very good comeback wins against Bullis and St. Stephen's. With his two fine ends, Robbie Barnett and Harbert Adams, Frank Hart, taking the snap from "No-Block" Moseley, was able to complete passes in crucial situations. Undoubtedly the strong points of the offensive line were the two guards, Kevin Newman and Bo Cheatham.

Cross-country, coached by Mr. Speights, was divided into two squads: the Varsity consisted of Oliver Marshall, Tom Herrington, Stephen Hyde, Glen Stancik, and Randy Gregson; Ed McDonald, John Rogers, Owen O'Connor, and Eric Teagarden comprised the J.V.

This fall the primary objective was to gain experience for a team next year. Great emphasis was placed on long over-distance running to develop the strength and endurance so vital to a distance runner.

The defense, led by center guard Clay Jacob, half-back Sandy Stuart, and tackle Jim Holt, kept the team in good position for their spectacular offensive comebacks. Outside linebacker Robbins Pancake, in addition to playing good defense, did most of the scoring in the St. Stephen's game on his fumble recovery and an intercepted pass. The success of the season must be attributed to the fine work of the defense.

Although the Marauders were not blessed with much natural talent, their fine teamwork and fierce desire brought them through. This, in addition to much knowledge of football, must be attributed to Coach deSarno, who is really the one person who made the season the success that it was.

Competition, however, was still important. The Maroon team showed well in the triangular meets, beat St. Albans, and placed surprisingly well in the State meet. The highlight of this initial season was also the bright spot of Homecoming, the 26-33 win over Woodberry.

This year's Junior Football Team, spiritedly led by Captain Bayly Buck and coached by Messrs. Johns, Burn, Dunlop, and Pete Dandridge, soared to a 5-2 record, their finest in many years.

The team featured a fine defense and a versatile offense which was able to capitalize on their breaks. The defensive line consisting of Fred Skaer, Terry Smith, Ken Ulsaker, Joe Gilchrist, Jim Farmer, and Jim Newman, combined with a strong team of linebackers, including Gordon Groves, John Cathcart, and Charles Glenn, to thwart any ground attacks. Defensive captain Wade Massie, along with Jim Elkin, Craig Stewart, and Andy Nibley composed an agile secondary.

The offense was able to combine hard running behind Jim Steptoe, Craig Murray, Doug Romaine, and George Elliott with a potent air attack that featured Quarterback Peyton Prospere and ends Buck and Richard Berkeley. A strong offensive line composed of Larry Lee and Rick Bardolph at tackles, Stuart Stevens and Web Trask at guards, and Greg Robertson at center, gave good protection and wide holes for the backs.

The highlights of the season were the victories over T.C. Williams and O'Connell.

The Cake Team started off the 1967 season slowly, but came back to roll up a fine record of 4-2-1. The team was ably coached by Mr. Deeble, Mr. Vaughan, and Mr. Schwartzburg, and Chris Patterson. Captain John Moncure and Co-Alternate Captains Mike Taylor and Lewis Rogers offered excellent leadership to the team.

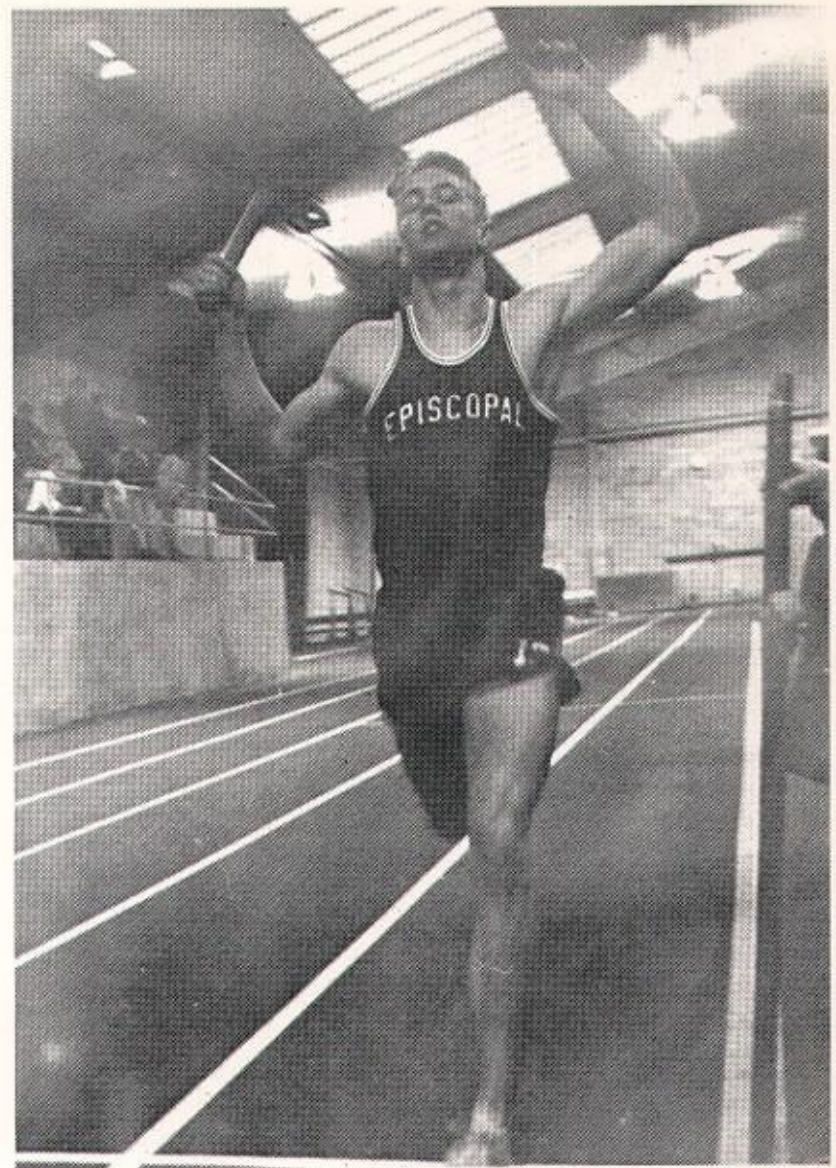

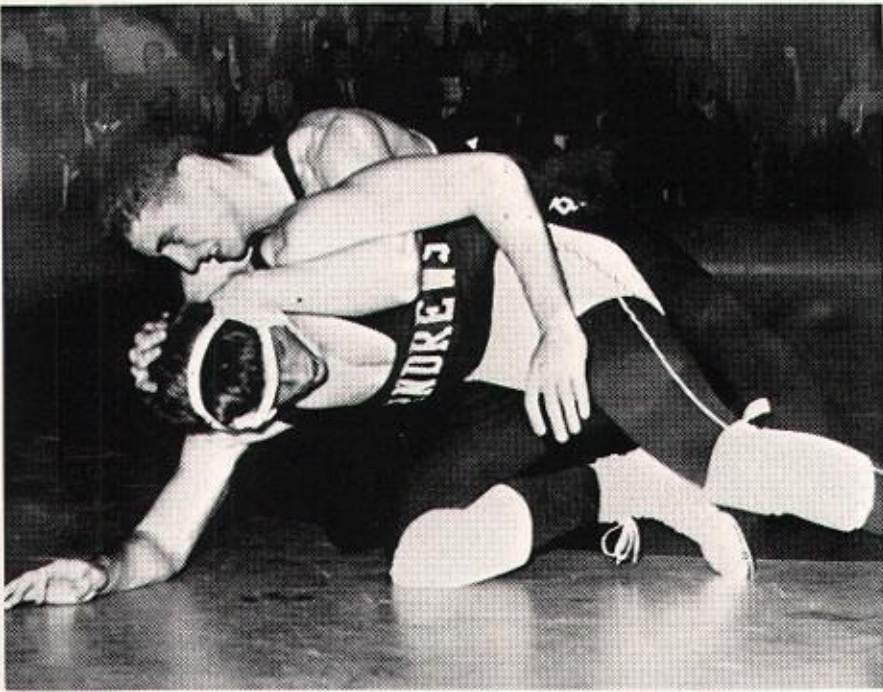

Outstanding among the Cakes' defensive linemen were Robbie Kelso and Wade Walker at the guard posts, Ed Haggard and Laird Stabler, the tackles, and Bill Clark at middle guard. The hard-hitting defensive backfield boasted Moncure, the safety, David Laird and Geoff Snodgrass at the halfback spots, and Bob Porter, Chris Snow, and Donald Trask as linebackers.

The hard-running backfield consisted of speedy quarterback John March, explosive fullback Taylor, and halfbacks Rogers, Munroe Jones, and Monty Bonner. Ample protection was provided for the backs by the ferocious front line, made up of tackles Brodie Burwell and Louis Ficklen, guards David Buchanan and David Kern, and center Mac Wade. Ends David Williams and Scott Peyton blocked well on sweeps, and had sure fingers for March's accurate passes.

The Varsity basketball team, coached by Mr. Ainslie, was a young squad that came a long way throughout the season and at times displayed excellent talent. Although they did not achieve a winning record, the squad put in some excellent performances. Against Gonzaga, a formidable Catholic power, the Maroon twice barely missed upset victories in the closing minute. In the Prep League they finished with a respectable record, conquering Randolph-Macon and Virginia Episcopal, and completely overwhelming Woodberry in one of their best performances of the season. The team ended by winning the consolation bracket in the St. Stephen's Tournament in a well-fought battle over Bishop Ireton.

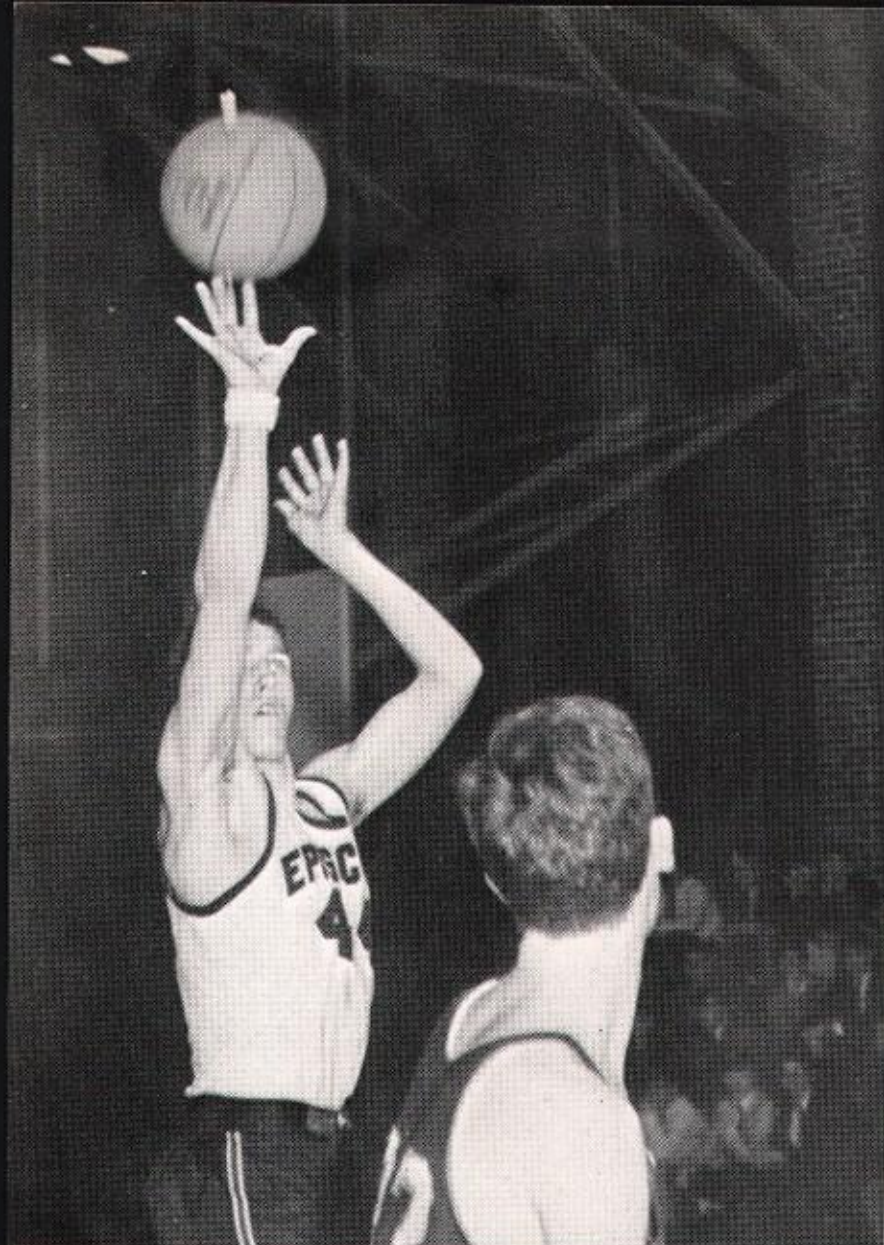

The height of the ridiculous

"Paws off!"

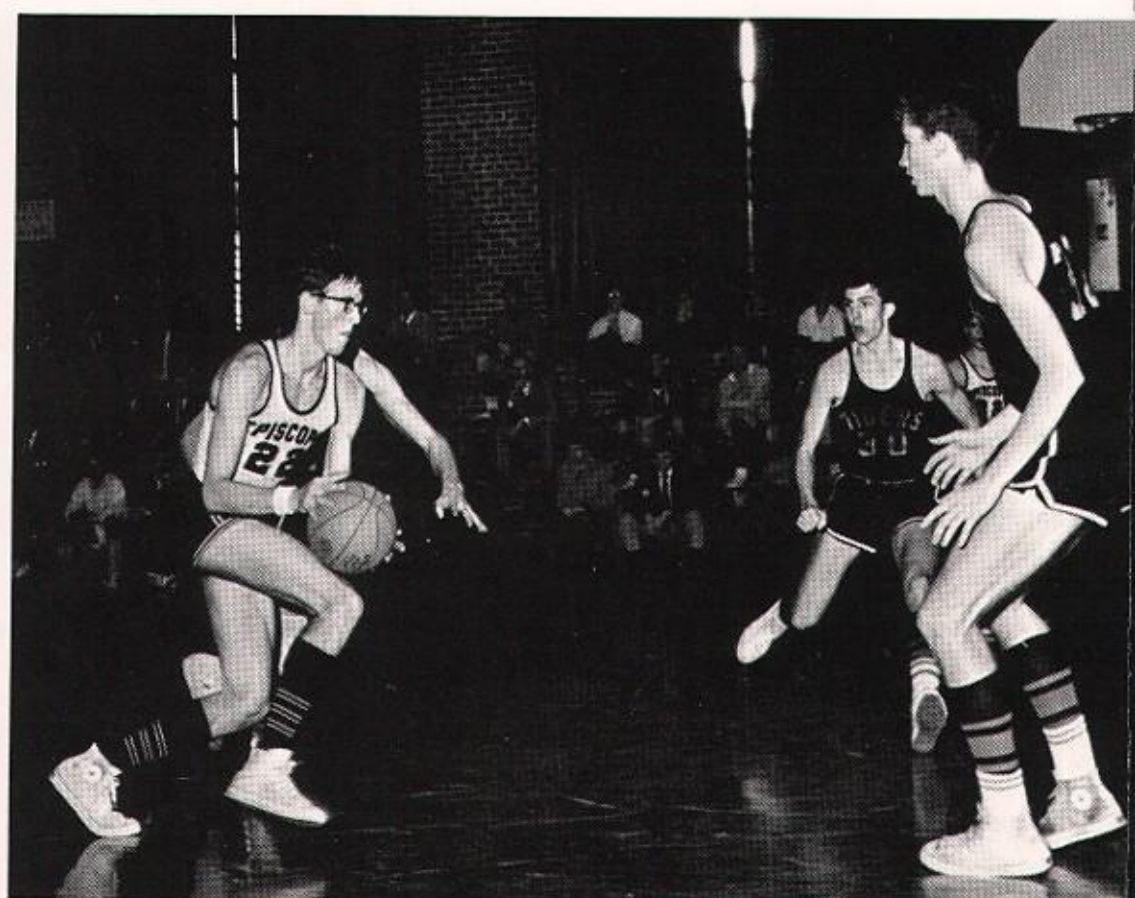

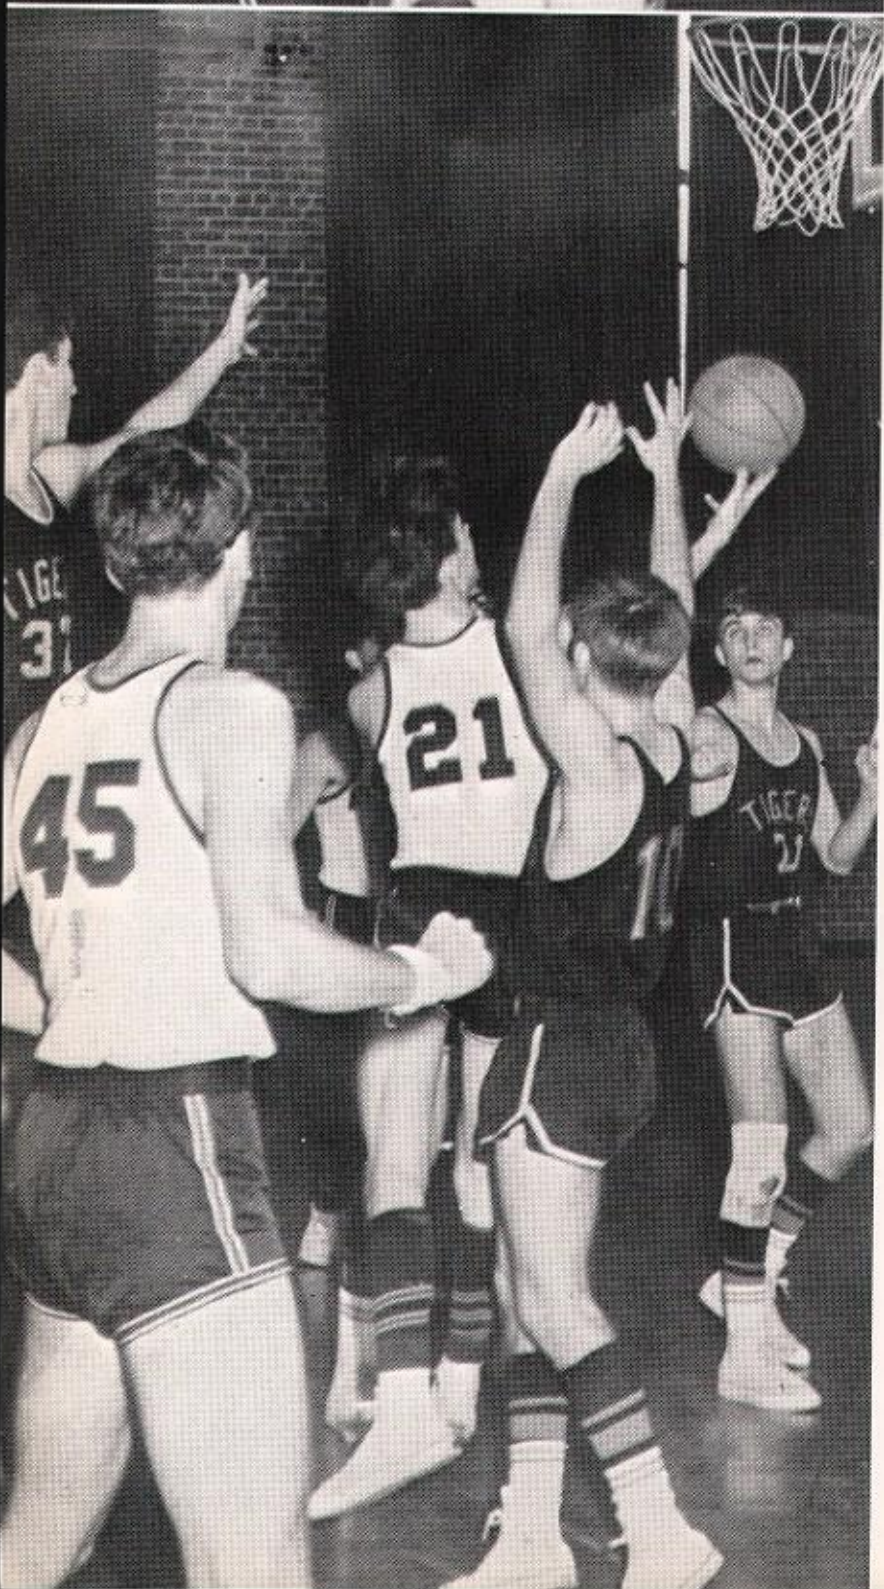

Co-Captain Jim Morton, "Mr. Everything," leading the team with a 15-point average, was the key to the squad's success. His excellent rebounding, ball-handling, and shooting made him a real leader on the court. Co-captain John Genet used his height effectively to rebound and block opponents' shots. Jon Barrett, who was the "quarterback" of the team, was the epitome of a cool, confident player in his backcourt and foul line exhibitions. Tim Haley, with his driving lay-ups and Peter Vandevanter with his tough defense and outside shooting rounded out the starting five.

Providing the depth for the Maroon were Armfield Cannon, David Partlow, Jere Royall, Page Smith, and Bob Coffin.

Under the experienced supervision of Mr. Burn, the J.V.'s demonstrated considerable depth and organization. Playing mainly a "two-platoon" system, and led by Captain Marshall Washburn, the J.V.'s depended upon speed and good rebounding position to compensate for their lack of height.

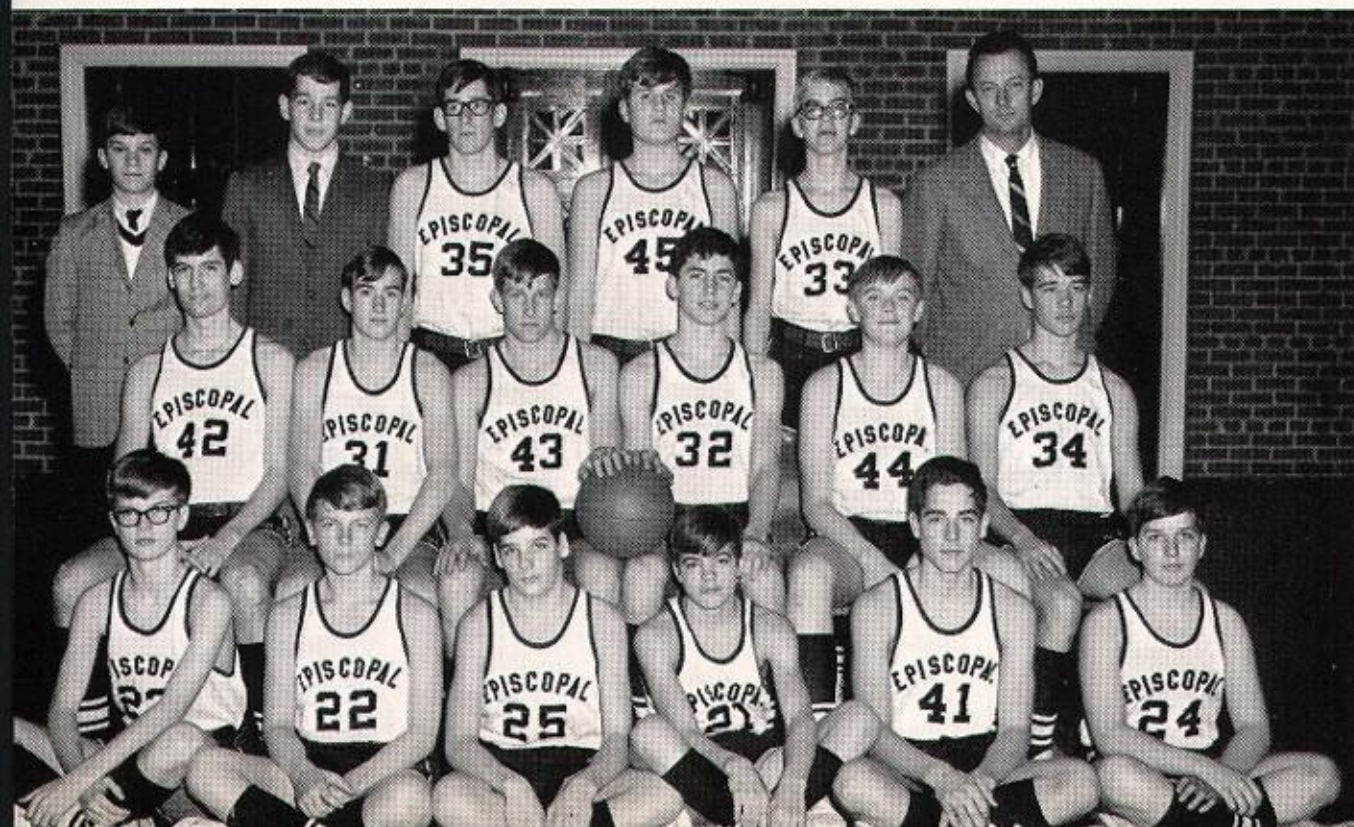

This year's Junior team, coached by Mr. Johns, featured several talented players, but their inexperience and failure to "jell" quickly spoiled their record. Co-captains Craig Stewart and Carl Carlson, John Moncure, Robbie Barnett, and Roger Simpkins formed the Junior's starting five. Strong bench support was

Seventh in St. Albans Tournament

With eight returning lettermen and new coaching depth, the Varsity wrestling team was able to produce one of the best records in recent years, 6-2-1. Highlights came with victories over strong St. Andrew's and St. Christophers' grapplers, both of whom had defeated Episcopal the last few years. The end of the season proved to be a disappointment, however, as the final match with Woodberry resulted in a tie.

Outstanding individual efforts were numerous, especially among the captains. A remarkable record of 9-0 was achieved by Co-Alternate Captain Chip Childs in the 120-lb. class, as he "put away" many formidable opponents. Co-Alternate Captain Lyles Carr (138-lb.) had a season record of 6-2 and earned a second place in the St. Albans' Tournament. Perhaps the climax to a great year was the tournament championship won by Captain Steve Fitts, as he pinned the Number One seed in his final match.

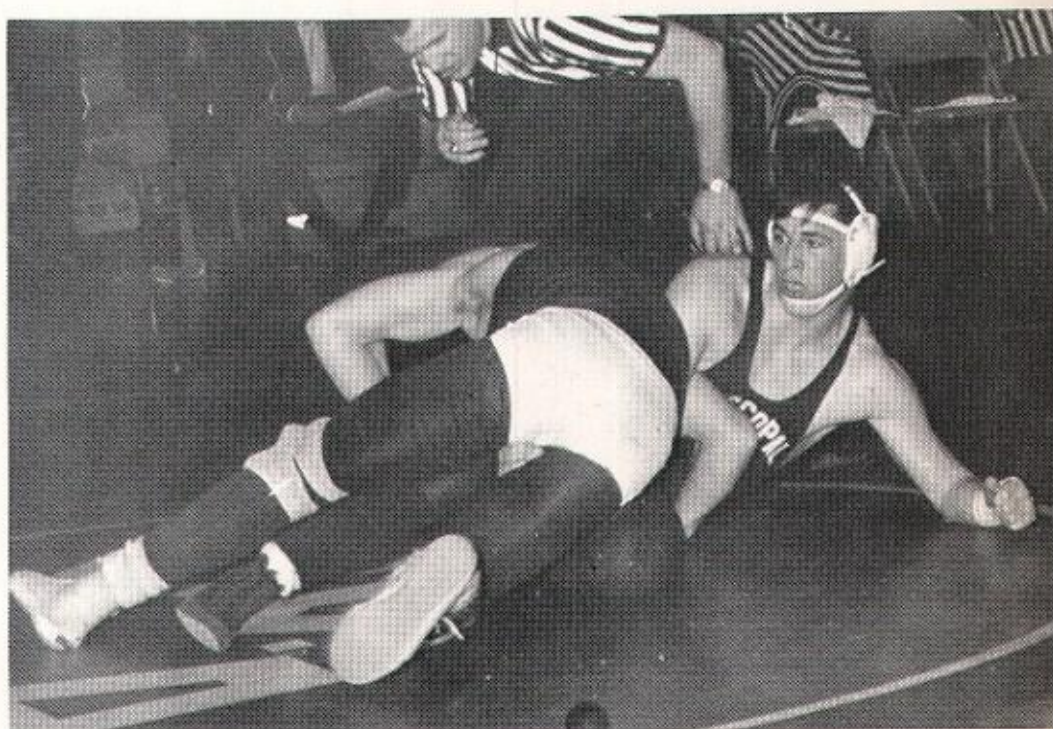

Child's play

No bridge tonight

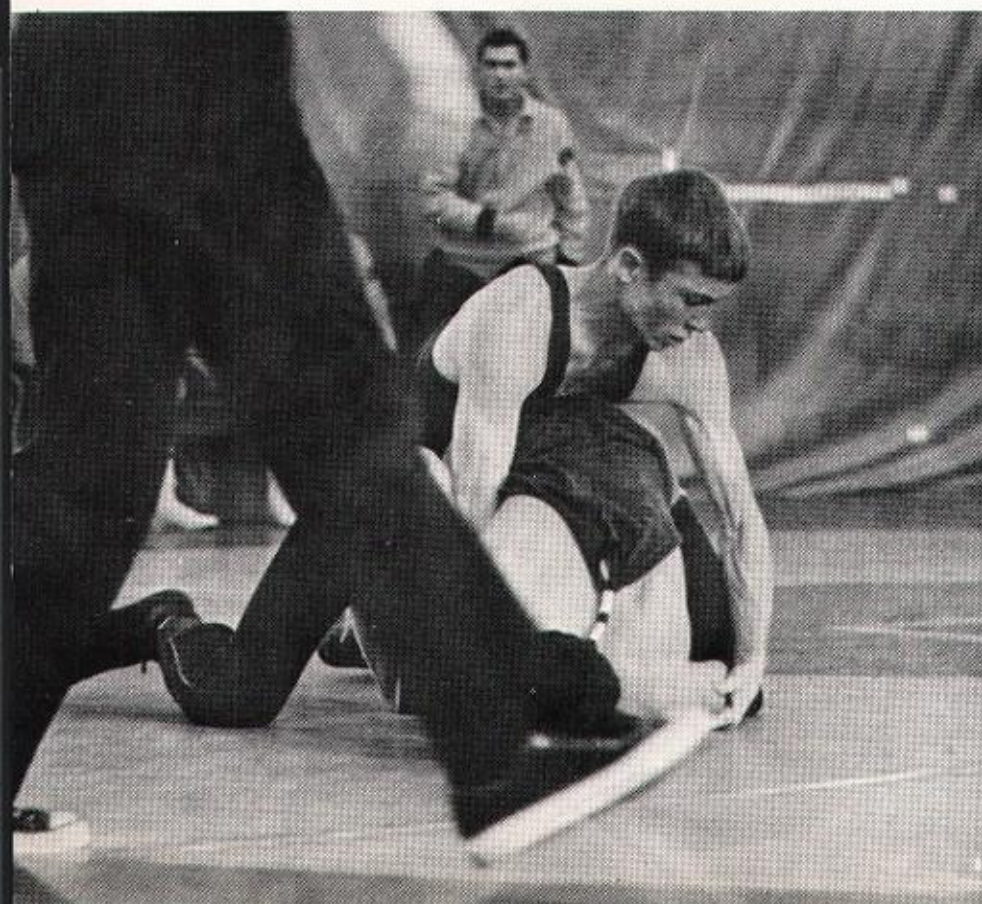

Reed Carr (127), in his first year of Varsity competition, took a third place in the Tournament after improving throughout the season. David Buchanan and Carter Land both showed promise at 103 pounds. Sandy Stuart at 112 and Pete Dandridge at 138 supported the team with decisive victories in a number of matches, as did Mark Skoggard (154) and Randy Morris (165 and 180) Beetle Smith hampered by a slow-to-mend wrist, wrestled 180 in the last few matches and gave needed stability to the lineup. Heavyweight Mark Varner had a 6-3 season in his second year of wrestling. Newcomers Wes Dolvin and Geoff Snodgrass performed bravely, if not very successfully, in 95-lb. exhibition matches.

Readiness and willingness to work were the key factors in bringing a winning season. This was supported by the excellent coaching of veteran Mr. Deeble and Mr. DeSarno, who joined the staff this year.

The 1968 J.V. Wrestling team was not only loaded with talented boys, but also was successful in gaining the first winning J.V. season in years. The J.V.'s looked especially sharp in victories over St. Andrew's and Woodberry.

As usual, the J.V. squad was composed of young grapplers gaining experience, and older boys who could not crack the Varsity lineup. In the lower weights good performances were turned in by Chip Land at the 95 spot, Bob Porter at 112 and Charlie Adams and Jim Farmer or Chris Clore in the 120 and 127 spots respectively. Clay Jacob at 133, Greg Cruze at 138, and captain Ed McDonald at 145 formed a solid middle-weight line-up. Tebbs Prewitt and Chris Nufer usually handled 154 and 165. In the heavy division, Lee McLaughlin and Dick Dobbins rounded out the winning team.

Overdue Bill

Trusty defender

After easy pre-season victories, the Varsity soccer team looked forward to a bright season. However, the regular season demonstrated a rather hesitant, alternating pace. When the teamwork which had been so evident in the pre-season games did click, there was no stopping Episcopal; but when the teamwork did not materialize, neither did the victories.

The defense, always slightly hampered by new formations and emergency substitutions, found titanic strength in its Captain and goalie John Goodwin. His consistent excellence made him worthy of his title. Robbins Pancake, probably one of the better fullbacks Episcopal has seen, proved reliable in the tightest situations. Also returning letterman Bucky Gump and "Trusty" Davidson added much to the defense in spirit as well as great ability.

Frequent substitutions in the halfback line-up prevented individual stardom, but Dave Clarke and Tim

Sharratt showed outstanding talents, and "Wader" Massie also gave promise of future greatness. On the forward line Co-captain Bill Lewis, although slowed down by mid-season injuries, proved invaluable again and again with his incredible ball control. Sophomore Doug Romaine added much to the attack with his lethal shot. Rob Rinehart, high scorer for the season, consistently proved his mettle in the middle of the line. Skillful wingman Moffett Cochran, second high-scorer

Rock Houstoun, Dave Wright, and Gordy Rawles all played their parts well in different attacking combinations.

Mr. Murray, completing his fifteenth season as head coach, showed his usual patience with the imperfections of Americans deprived of the use of their hands, and with the vagaries of Northern Virginia weather. E.H.S. soccer could scarcely survive without him.

This year's J.V. team coached by Mr. Shaw and Seminarian Paige Williams, compiled a respectable 6-4-2 record. Captains Jim Spaulding and Chuck Clay provided sometimes humorous leadership for the young team. The forward line was composed of Val Jackson, Greg Robertson, Bayly Buck, Sam Moncure, and Dave Kelso. The tight defense of Joel Cheatham, Richard Rhodes, Chuck Clay, and goalie Jim Spaulding shut out several opponents. Perhaps the strongest positions were manned by halfbacks Scott Bergland, Monty Bonner, George Elliott, and Paul Duke.

The most noticeable characteristic of the Junior team this year was improvement. Although they met some rather formidable opponents, they managed to improve with each game. The last game reflected the progress made during the season, by the combined efforts of the coaches and the individual efforts of each member.

A Head in the hurdles

The '68 winter edition of the Varsity track team can be remembered for more than being the first to function in the Flippin Field House because it has founded a winning tradition. Besides the excellent facilities, the success of the season was due to the quality of the coaching. Mr. Seidule, Mr. Boothe, Mr. Shelor, Mr. Speights, and Mr. Yarborough all managed to transform raw talent into first-rate finished products. Finally, the team had the performers who under pressure scored the points.

Undoubtedly the star was Captain Carrington Herbert, whose most outstanding day perhaps came against St. Albans and Christchurch when he captured six first places, and also helped to win the mile relay. However, he did things like that all winter long, in the high, long, and the triple jumps, the shot-put, sprints, hurdles, relays, and . . . well, you name it, he did it.

There were others who excelled. Jess Erwin set a new pole vault record. Co-alternate Captain Jim Chickering stood out in the long jump and relays, while Co-alternate Captain Rob Sanders jumped, hurdled, and sprinted for many points. The team had an exceptionally fine group of distance men in Tom Herrington, Oliver Marshall, Stephen Hyde, Owen O'Connor, and Jim Steptoe. Depth was provided in the field events by Ed Inman, Joe Boyd, Ken Nicholson, Frank Hart, Rex Wilson, and Alex Wise. Erwin, Inman, and Nicholson contributed also on the tartan track, as did Joe Simpson, Ralph Gorrell, and Jack Matthews.

All in all, this was a fine team to christen the Field House, and it carried out the assignment in style.

Fourth in Northern Virginia Meet

Four records were set by the Junior track team this winter, as an indication of its ability. Under the guidance of Mr. Vaughan, the Junior Maroons developed their promise well. Co-Captains Randy Gregson and Trigg Brown led such workhorses as Roddy Davis and Mike Taylor, who excelled in many events; Chris Shepherd, who set a new mile record; and Mac Tieche, who set a new hurdles record.

"The eyes of Texas are upon you!"

After a decidedly successful premiere in the winter, the Flippin Field House proved its true value in the preparation it gave its denizens for the spring. Aside from this, the most important single factor in a strong spring season was Captain Carrington Herbert. The almost ageless veteran returned his talent in the high jump, long jump, shot put, hurdles, and various sprints events that he managed to squeeze between his fortes. Supported by a great amount of depth in the sprints, he led the team to one of its most noteworthy season.

Rob Sanders and Jim Chickering, co-alternate captains, gave the team points and added spirit. Sanders was a strong contender in the high jump and triple jump. Chickering was particularly strong in the long jump, but also proved tough in the sprints.

The pole vault was dominated by Jess Erwin, but he had much competition from Ed Inman and Joe Boyd.

The two outstanding sprinters were Inman and Simpson, who proved their mettle early in the season. Jack Matthews, Moffett Cochran, and Ralph Gorrell were the leading quarter-milers.

The distances were securely held down by first-year men Stephen Hyde in the 880 and Tom Herrington in the mile. Ollie Marshall, a perennial contender, starred in the two-mile run, backed up by David Partlow and Jim Steptoe.

The two-mile relay team which proved outstanding, was composed variously of Matthews, Cochran, Nicholson, Gorrell, and Herbert.

The weights were capably handled, and hurled by the versatile Herbert, Lee McLaughlin, the "infant Hercules," and Alex Wise.

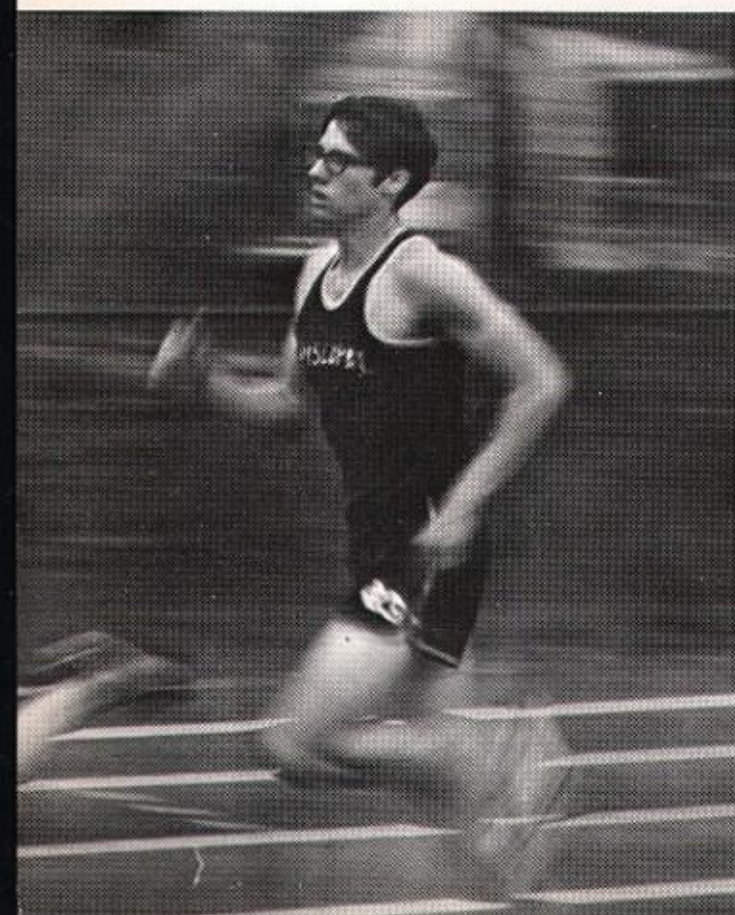

As usual, this cast of talented performers owed much to the direction of their coaches, Messrs. Seidule, Boothe, Speights, and Yarborough, whose prescriptions on conditioning and technique provided a big competitive edge.

The Junior Track team, led by Captain Lee McLaughlin and Alternate-Captain Peter Marshall, and coached by Mr. Vaughan, enjoyed another fine year, complementing last year's undefeated team. Many new records and fine times show improvement in the boys. Trigg Brown, the leading scorer, Cooke Wilson, Craig Stewart, Mac Tieche, Downing Mears, Roddy Davis, and the rest of the squad showed enthusiasm second to none.

This year's Varsity baseball team, boosted by five returning lettermen and several of last year's J.V. standouts, went into the season with high hopes.

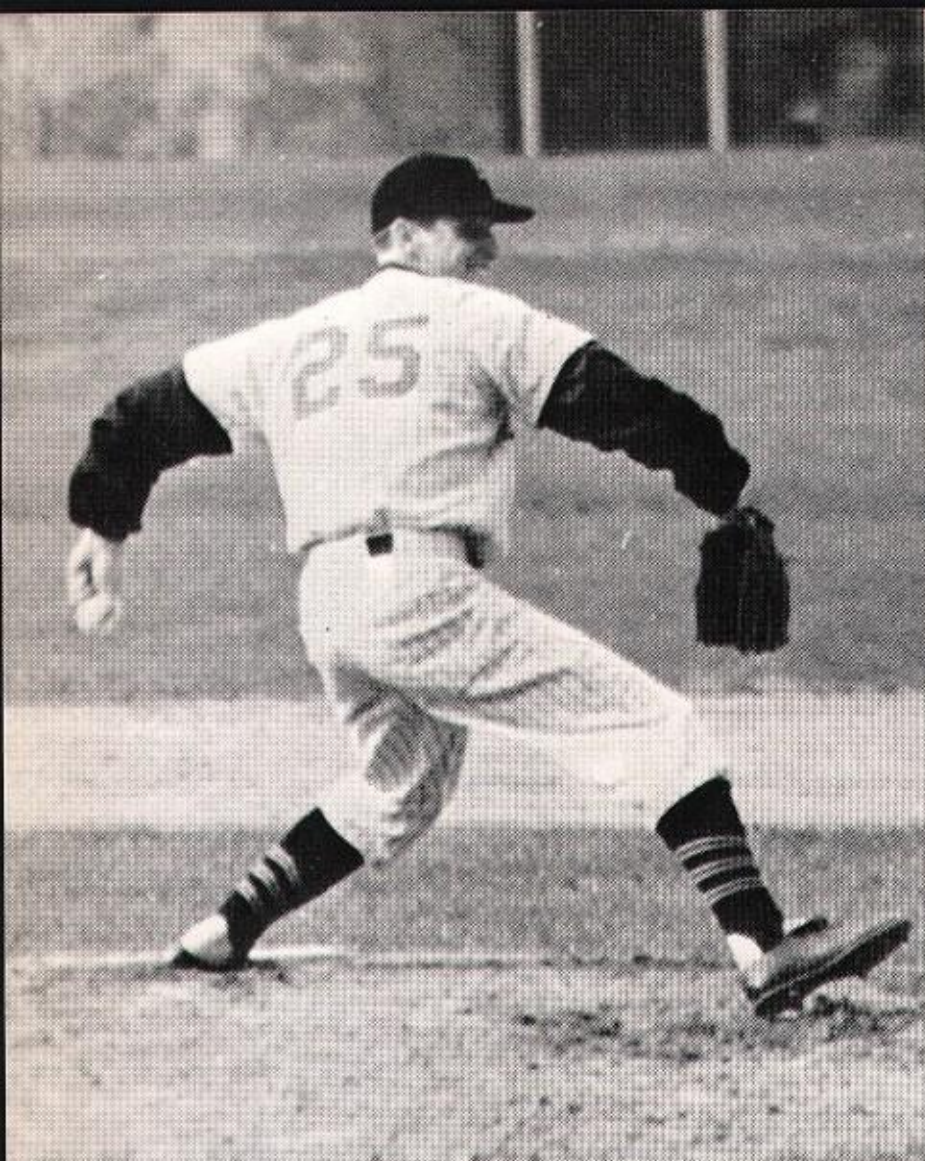

Captains and steady performers Rex Wilson and Bill Freach kept the team moving with their fine fielding and bat work. The battery of French and Wilson was backed up at third base by hustling "Cell" Bergland, who showed his versatility both in the field and at the plate. Returning lettermen Bill Lewis and Rob Rinehart handled the shortstop and second-base positions, showing a great deal of teamwork at the keystone. Leadoff hitter Rinehart exhibited great speed on the basepaths, while Lewis' long ball drove in many valuable and timely runs. John Genet, with his wide reaching ability, held down the first base position while showing steady improvement at bat. The outfield was manned by John Zapf, Tim Haley, and Rock Houston. While constantly demonstrating power at the plate Zapf was one of the team's most steady performers. Rock and Tim showed agility in the outfield, and gave the team extra power in the second half of the batting order. Tom Bowen and Fred Poisson added to the team in the pitching and outfield departments.

Under its new coach, Mr. deSarno, the team had fine direction for a good season.

J.V.

This year's J.V., as is usually the case, faced the perennial problems of inexperience and lack of talent. However, under the able coaching of Buddy Rogers, they showed poise in the field later in the season, although stiff competition wrecked the hopes of a winning record.

The outfield, patrolled by Stras in left, Lane in center, and Barnett in right, displaying a lot of hustle, played well. Perhaps the team's strong point was the defensive infield, comprised of Co-Captains Peyton Prospere at third and Don Trask at shortstop, David Buchanan at second, and Billy Sullivan at first. The pitching staff—Mack Johnston, Mac Wade, and Eric Teagarden—performed admirably despite a lack of depth. The catching was handled by Bo Cheatham.

The Greenway way

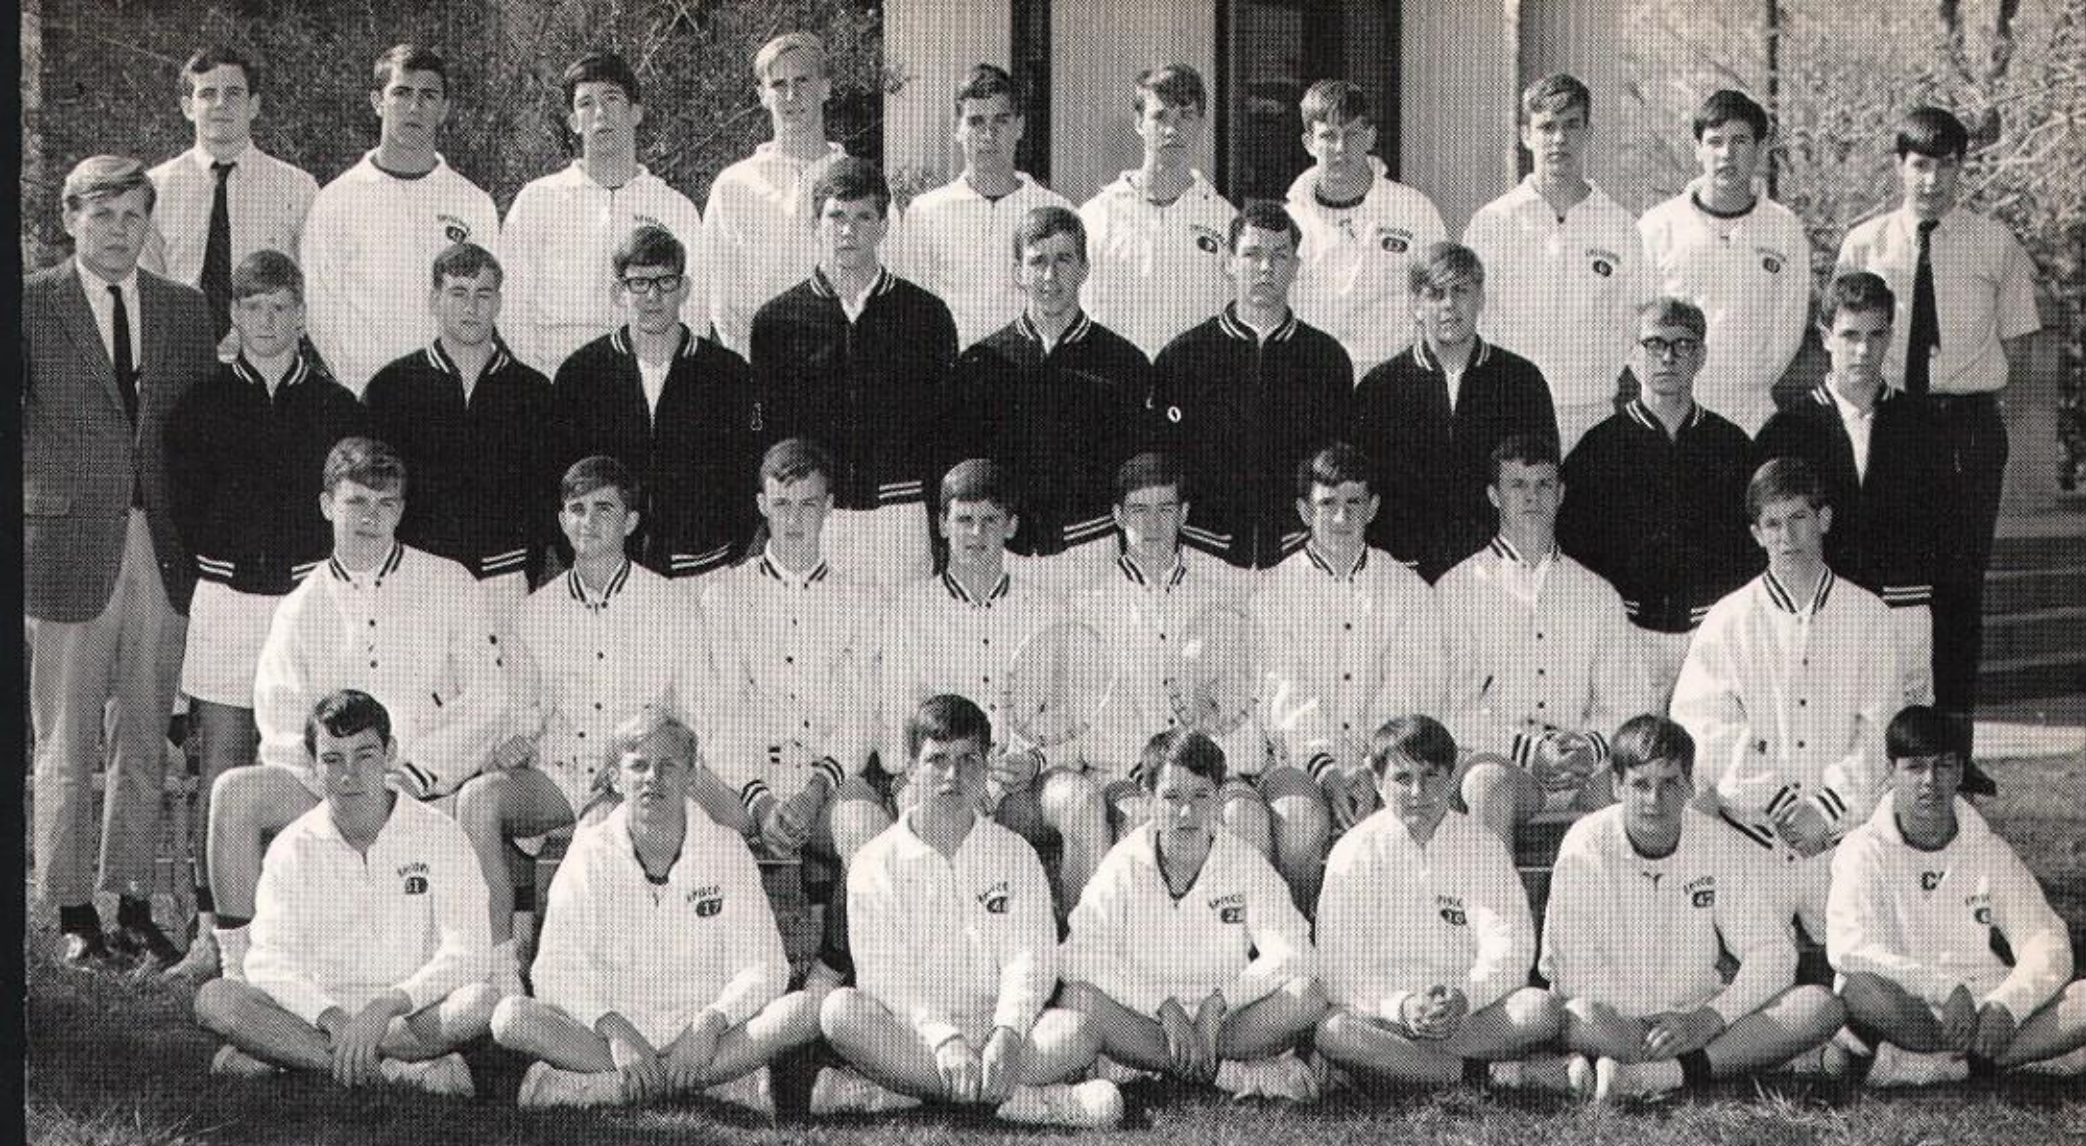

Greenway

The 1968 edition of our happiest tradition, Greenway, has proved to be a season marked with talented ball players, colorful coaches, blind umpires, and a Bolshevik staff. This year's teams are very evenly matched, as the Maroons-and-Blacks of Barrett and Hindsley, sponsored by the Bad Attitude Syndicate, battle the Maroons of Hatch and "Cruncher" Clore, and the Blacks of Clarke and Patterson for the coveted pennant.

Several valuable players were in the league this season, as the quality of play, and low scores made Greenway much like pro baseball. Pitcher David Laird, infielder Webster Trask, and outfielder Rick Hall helped give the Maroon-and-Blacks a laudable lineup while the Maroons were led by four-year man, all-star H.C. Redd, Venezuelan infielder La Val Jackson, a three-year Greenway man, and quick fielding Victor Grainger. The powerful Blacks, featured Kinloch "a-go-go" Nelson, Laird "Squatty" Stabler, and "Groover" Mearns leading the attack.

The competent staff of umpires, scorekeepers, and administrative assistants enabled commissar Horne to relax, and enjoy the serene but explosive atmosphere of 1968 Greenway.

The 1968 Varsity tennis team, although suffering from a lack of experience, displayed a strong desire to win. Led by sophomore captains Randy Gregson and Bob Coffin, plus last year's J.V.'s, the team contemplated a successful season. Gregson, holding the Number One spot, played exceptionally well from the beginning, and promises to be one of E.H.S.'s greats. Coffin, Washburn, and Sharpe were the chief competitors for the second, third, and fourth positions. Rising from his sixth position last year, Coffin was hampered by a sore arm but still played well. Washburn and Sharpe, coming from the J.V.'s, played consistently and showed great improvement. Rounding out the top six were Robbins Pancake and Jesse Davidson, who came on strong after a slow start and added greatly to the team's depth. Bill Old and David Williams, providing good competition for the rest of the team, completed the squad.

In his first year of Varsity coaching Mr. Burn provided excellent instruction for all the players, who improved greatly throughout the season and show much promise for future teams.

Sneak attack

The 1968 Varsity Lacrosse team promised to come back from last year's disappointing season. Characterized by depth and few superstars, the Maroons used their teamwork to outhustle and outscore their opponents. Captain Randy Morris and John Goodwin have played the game ever since it began as a letter sport at Episcopal. Randy has the hardest shot of any midfielder, and he uses this weapon together with his talent of being in the right place at the right time to lead the Maroon middies. Beetle Smith and Fraser Hubbard are long-time lettermen on the midfield. They are backed by two younger players, Jimmy Farrar and Whit Whittle. Farrar has the stickwork and Whittle the hustle to make the first two midfielders the best working in a long time. One of the most distinctive players is George Butler who uses his stick as a paddle to move downfield.

The defense was thought to be the weakest spot of this team last year. Ed McDonald is the only letterman on the defense, and his knowledge and experience could not cover three men. Fortunately "Big Dog"

Varner has blossomed into a great crease defense man who loves to hear the goalie cry, "Check sticks!" Mark uses his size to clear out the crease and his huge stick to make this year's defense the best clearing defense ever. On the other wing position a middle-turned-man, Mark Skoggard, plays on tremendous hustle and desire to improve.

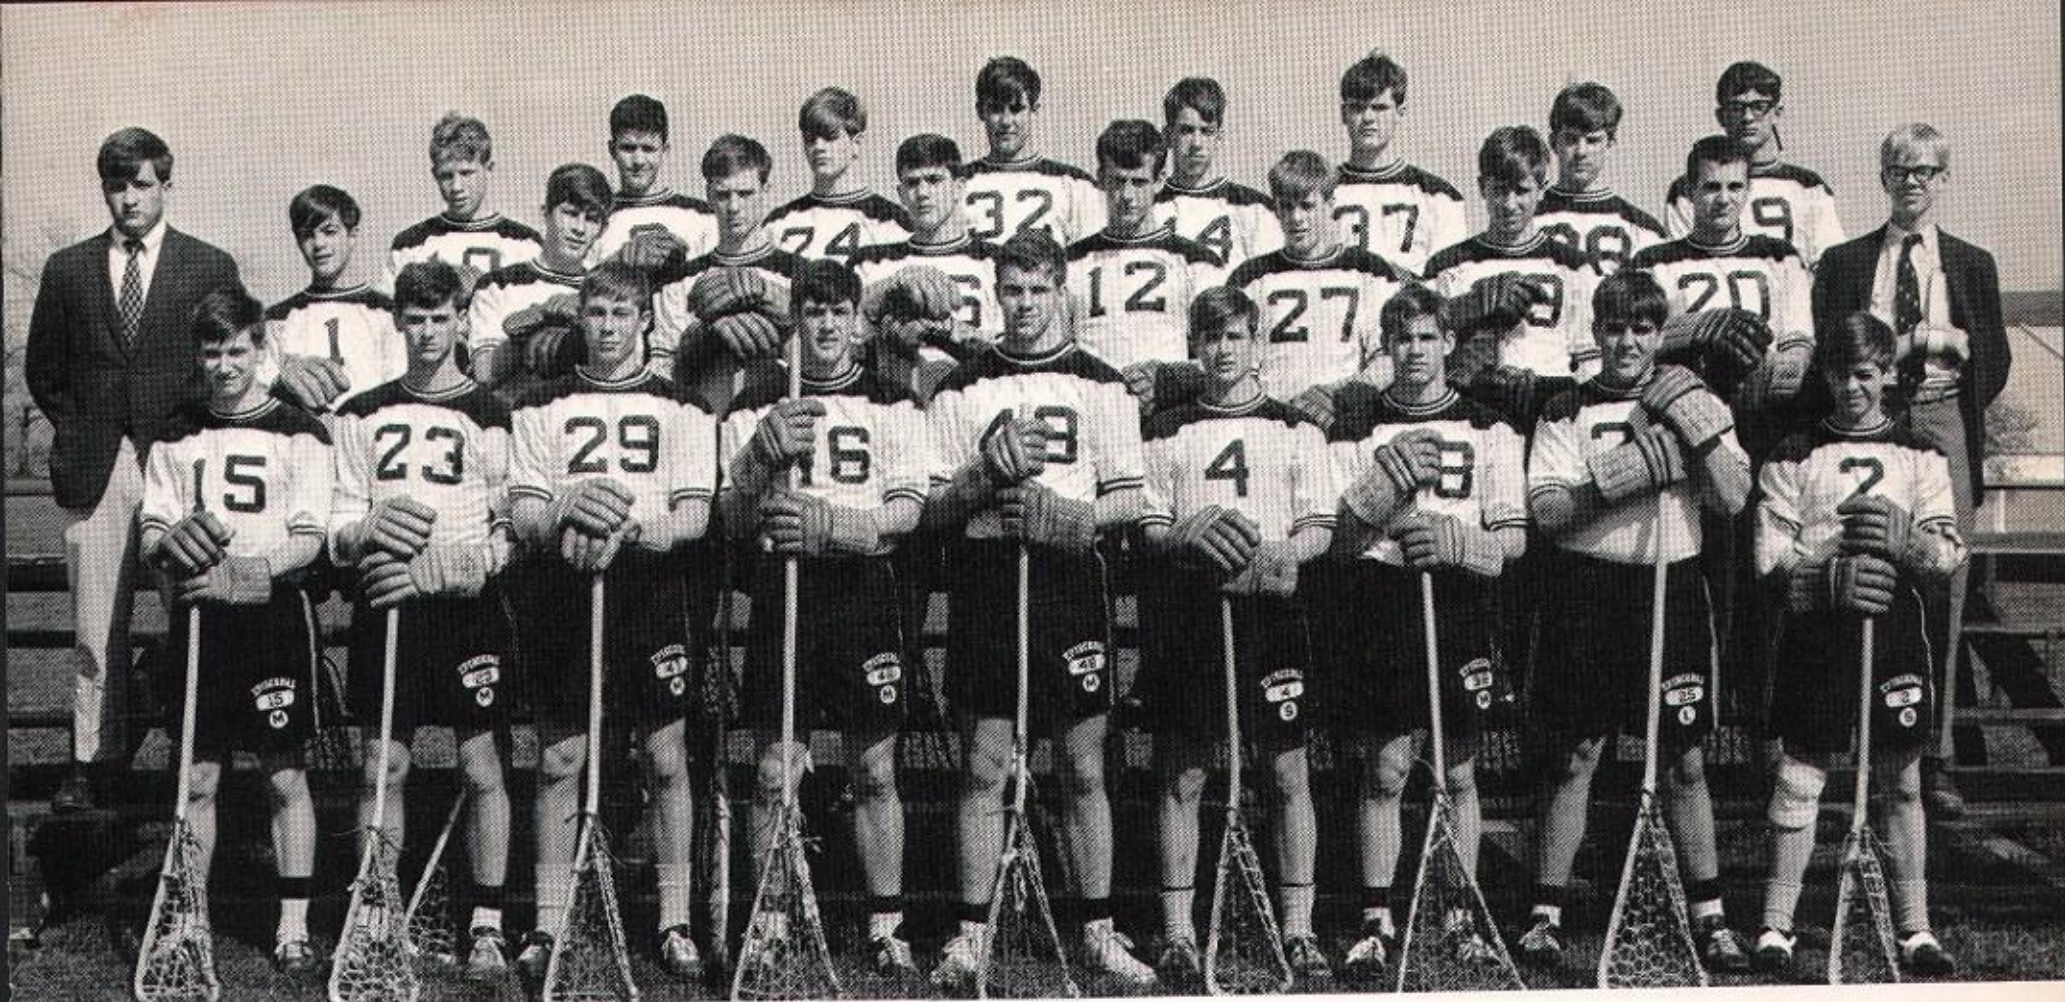

Certainly nothing has to be said about John Goodwin in the goal. He is the best.

The attack was aided tremendously by the return of Pete Dandridge. Due to Bayly Buck's maturing as a wing attack, Pete has less pressure on him and can use his Baltimore talents to his best. Both Bayly and Pete are adept feeders and their quickness behind the goal often gives the Maroon shot after shot. Stephen Fitts is once again playing the crease attack position.

Mr. Shelor took over the coaching this year and made a very successful debut. Much of the team's success can be attributed to his sense of drive and ability to demand maximum effort.

Happiness is 7-6.

After receiving its own separate coaches for the first time, the J.V. lacrosse team strove to overcome its relative inexperience with desire and hustle. Under the leadership of captain Rob Whittle and co-alternate captains Tebbs Prewitt and Doug Romaine, the team worked diligently to prepare itself for the upcoming season.

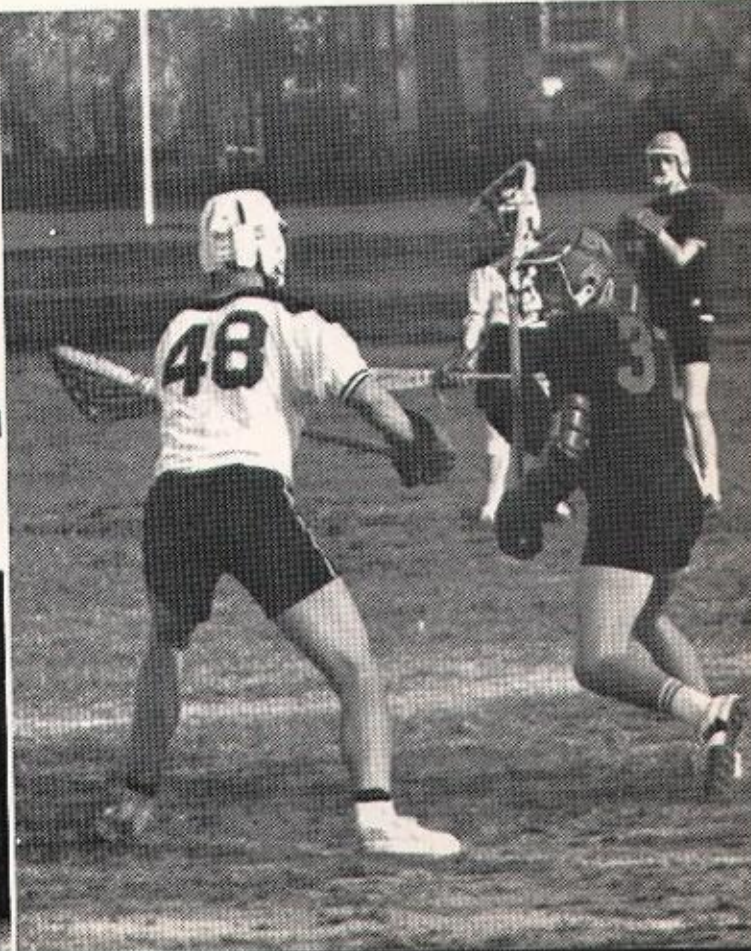

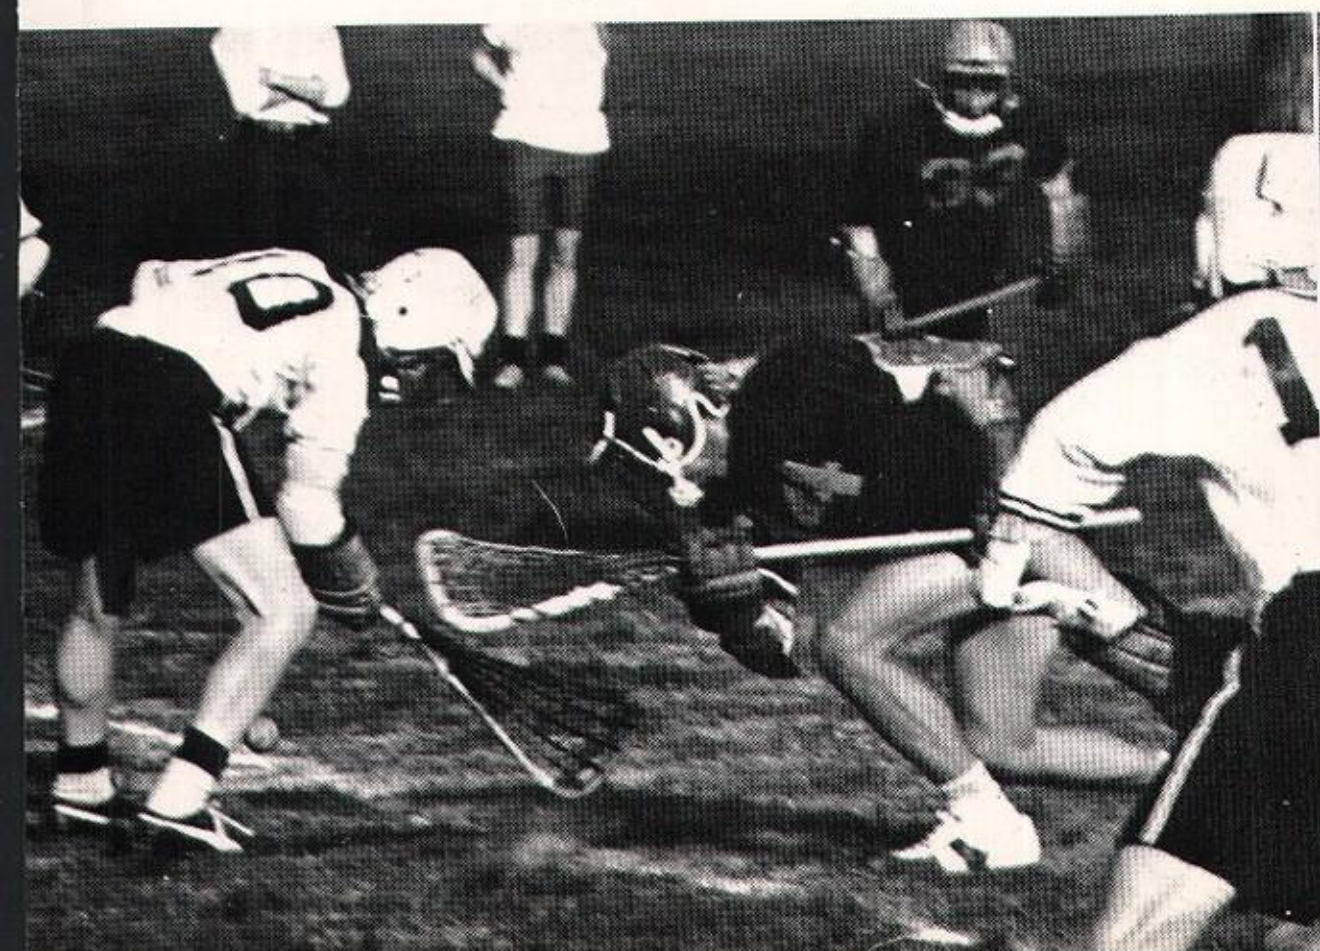

The attack featured Chris Snow and "Chunk" Glenn behind the goal, and Romaine on the crease. Because of its defensive and offensive responsibilities, the midfield was composed of two separate units: Richard Rhodes, Page Smith, and Clay Jacob formed the first midfield, while the second unit was made up of Reed Carr, Harbert Adams, and Tom Steptoe. The defense consisted of Prewitt, Whittle, and Bill Webster, while Patt Naul, Louis Ficklen, and Sandy Schenck alternated as goalie.

J.V.

The team was indebted to Geddes Dowling and seminarian Mr. Goode because, without their efforts and coaching, a separate J.V. team would not have been feasible. By combining hustle, new experience, and desire, the 1968 J.V. Lacrosse team looked for a successful season.

In Appreciation

Stuart Sydnor Walden

Recognizing the unpayable debt that the boys of the Episcopal High School owe to Mr. Walden, the Editors of the 1968 Whispers extend their sincere appreciation to him at this, the close of his final year.

The coach of many fine and several outstanding Episcopal football, basketball, and baseball teams, Mr. Walden has been a symbol of fundamentalism and determination in athletics. His over-all record as head coach is admirable indeed; he has been a capable athletic director and teacher. Above all he has showed us that there can be no short cut to success.

Mr. Walden has approached all of his duties with the same apparent sleepiness which has become his trademark, yet the true man is more evident while heatedly making a point on Greenway Field in the early fall, or telling the best jokes in school to ease his nervous players before a big game. Beneath the inscrutable exterior is a large heart which has given to each of us.

It is only fitting that we thank Mr. Walden and his wife, a true lady who has inspired us all, as they leave this year—we wish them all of the happiness that we can.

Afterword

Publication of Whispers marks the end of another year at E.H.S. for everyone, and a close of another of life's chapters for the seniors. The class of 1968 is the best that I have known in my five years here; perhaps my being in it makes me partial. Despite the inevitable cliques, there is a rare but wonderful spirit embodied within the class. The good times that each has had should never be forgotten, and it is my hope that this, their final Whispers, captures in some part this spirit, so that in future years it can help recall one of the best experiences we will have.

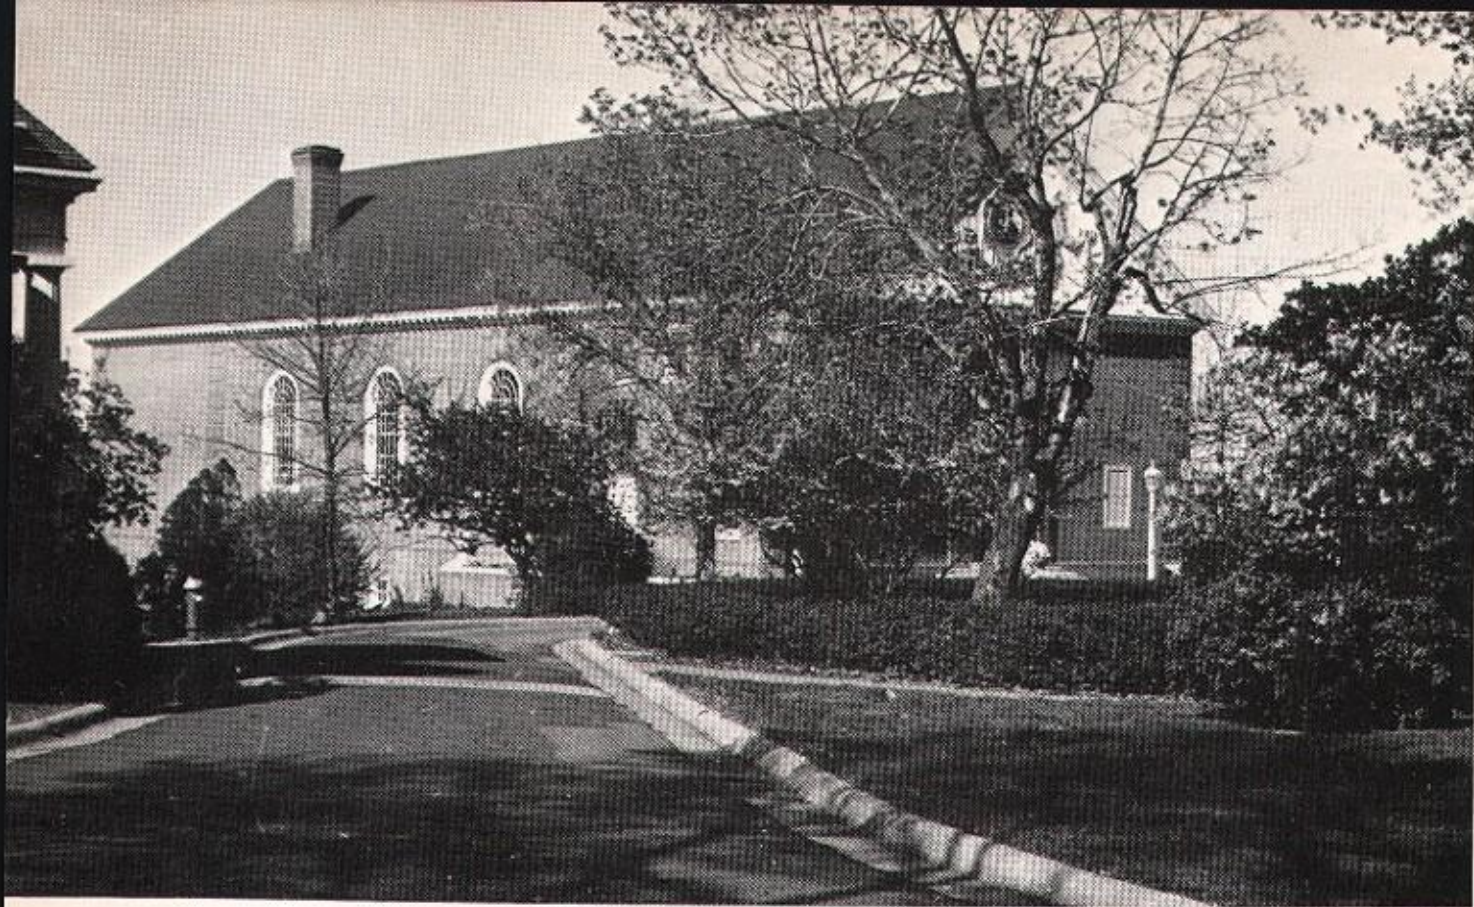

1968 will be marked as an important year in the history of the school. The inauguration of a new Headmaster is a major challenge, both to the man and to the school, and the future can depend heavily on the relationship first established between them. Since Mr. Hoxton's arrival many things have occurred or are being undertaken: The Long Range Planning Committee forms the most needed project the school has perhaps ever seen; the announced integration of the student body for next year is unquestionably necessary for our changing world; and the securing of a permanent Chaplain should help restore a badly decayed religious atmosphere.

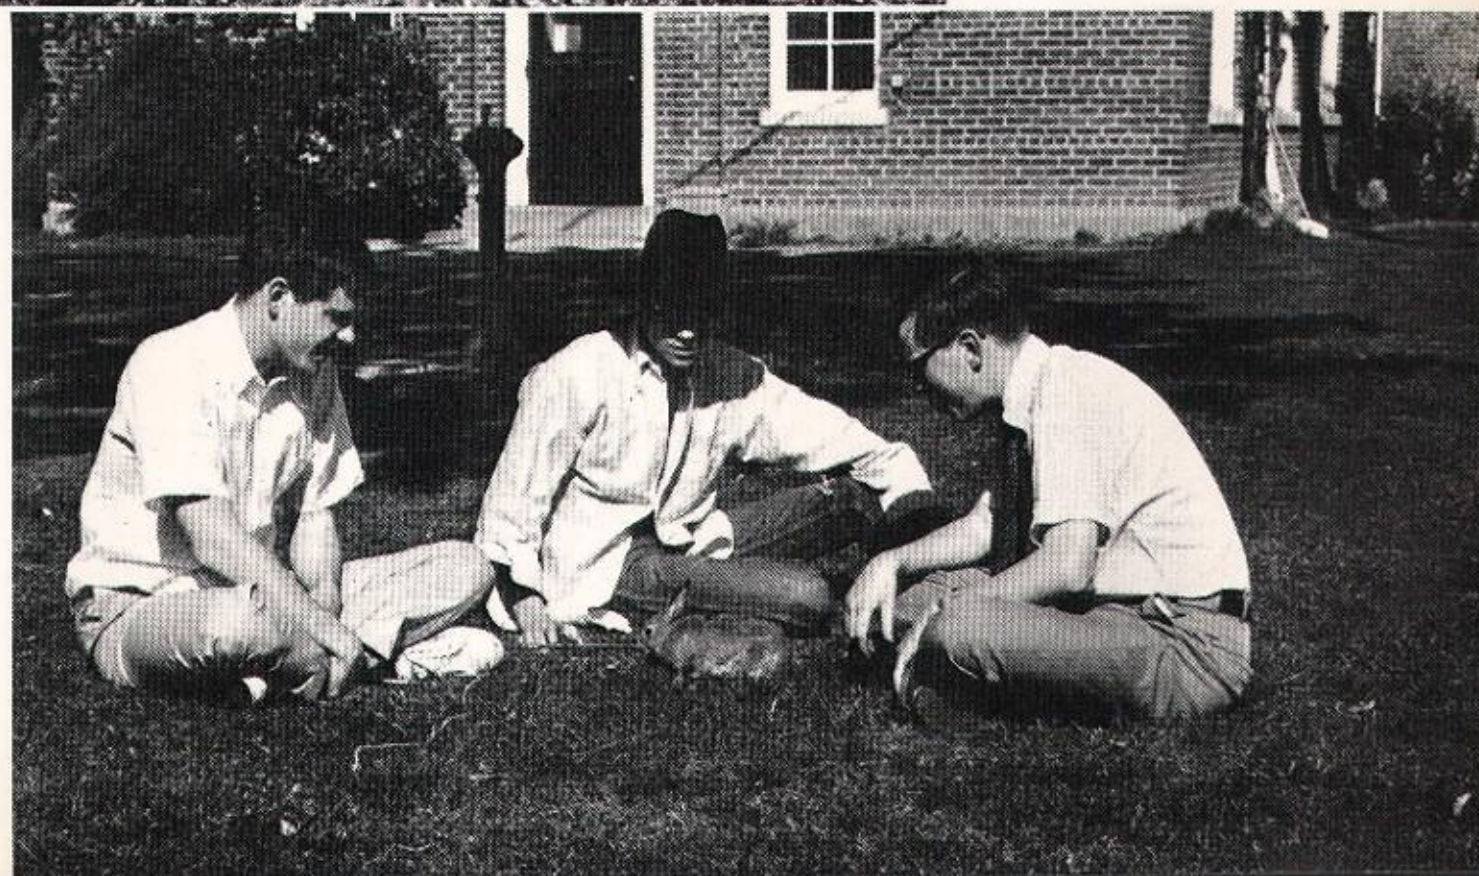

In his first year Mr. Hoxton has done much, but much remains to be done. Relations between faculty and students still tend to be complicated by an archaic code of rules, which has proven singularly resistant to reforms that would keep it in better harmony with our changing society. If demerits were in fact given just for "conduct which violates the principles of good citizenship," there might be less objection; but in too many cases they represent the whims and prejudices of individual masters. Such citations as "chewing gum in class," or "collar unbuttoned" tend more to bring the system into disrepute than to result in improvement in conduct. This school is too good to let itself get entangled in petty restrictions, that distract us from the main purpose of striving for excellence in character and performance.

1968 will also be remembered as the year of the haircut, 54-0, intramural "rumbles," riots in D.C., the exciting Trivia Contest, but even more "exciting" dances, senior coffee in Social Hall, monitor meetings, and Rudy Nettleton. It is my wish that we have succeeded in reviewing this year in the Whispers, "telling it like it was."
